4 Elementary Principals Censure Music Teacher For Poor Performance

The four Princeton Regional elementary school principals told the School Board last Tuesday night that a teacher in their schools was inefficient, late, unable to communicate effectively in writing, and had endangered the health and safety of children.

Those present at the School Board meeting had largely come to the John Witherspoon Middle School cafeteria to participate in another round of discussions on the school budget, which was scheduled to follow the personnel item. They listened quietly as the four principals told of the problems they had experienced with McCray Bussey, a music teacher who is paid $66,072 a year. Mr. Bussey, who has taught in the Princeton schools for 26 years, teaches the instrumental music program in all four elementary schools.

Holding a meeting of this type in public is very rare, and it was done at the request of Mr. Bussey. According to New Jersey school law, in order for the School Board to discuss a staff member, that person must receive written notifiction from the Board of its intent.

Most staff members elect to have the Board's deliberation take place in closed sesion. Mr. Bussey chose a public discussion.

Community Park Principal Lois Zabriskie said Mr. Bussey did nof begin teaching instrumental music until 25 days of the school year had gone

Township Employees Vote Against Unionization, 33-9

Township employees voted 33 to 9 on Friday not fo join the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) Council 73.

AFSCME represents white collar, non-supervisory, nonmanagerial employees. The election was held because more than 30 percent of the Township employees eligible for the union petitioned in January for one to be held by the state Public Employees Relations Commission (PERC).

A meefing held in February established the number of titles eligible at 48. Two more positions were added later, bringing the total to 50 full- and part-time workers.

Of these, 17 are public works employees and 33 are office workers. The Township sent a letfer signed by Mayor Michele Tuck to all eligible employees advising them of the date, time and place of the election and urging them to vote. The letter pointed out fhat if 50 percent plus one of the votes cast are "Yes," the Township employees would automatically have a union under AFSCME.

Included with the letter was a fact sheet in a question-and-answer formaf listing a dozen commonly asked questions about a municipal union. The quostions and answers were drafted by Robert Clarke, the Township's labor attorney, and reworked by the administration. The purpose, according to Susan Stanbury, assistant Township adminlstrator, was to help employees make an informed decision.

Ono of the questions on the sheet was whother employees are automatically entitled to specific benefits under union represontation. The answer, "No," was followed by a short

Firm Chosen to Conduct Revaluations of Property In Borough & Township

Michael G. Morris Associates of Flemington has been awarded the contract to carry out the revaluation of all properties in Princeton Township and Borough.

The firm's bid of $341,403 was the lowest of five bids submitted in a second round of bidding. Bids received in the first round were rejected on a variety of technicalities. According to Carol Caskey, assessor for the Township and Borough, the second round resulted in a savings of about $30,000. Bidders submitted one bid which covered two separate contracts based on the number of line items in each of the two municipalities.

The contract with the Township will be for $209,200, for the Borough $132,401. Revaluation is expected to begin in April once the contracts are drawn up and signed.

Ms. Caskey has scheduled Town Meetings in each municipality when Mr. Morris will be present to explain fhe process in general to taxpayers. He will also take individual ques-

Who Could Imagine Andy's Tavern Would End Up a Sushi Bar?

If you had taken a poll, back when Andy's Tavern on Alexander Street closed, and asked the regulars what they fhought would crop up in its place, the answers would probably have run fhe gamut from "another bar" to ... well ... "another bar."

They'd have been right, in a sophistic sense, but a sushi bar is probably not what they would have had in mind.

Andy's, the once proud bastion of pizza and beer, is now Soonja's Cafe, a restaurant specializing in Asian cuisine — particularly sushi.

Opened this month by Soonja Nam and her husband, Sin-U Nam, Soonja's Cafe is a refurbished version of Andy's. The interior walls and furniture are still made of brick and polished wood, and there are still stools at the bar, but the culinary offerings have changed dramatically.

The Nams came to the United States from Korea in 1968, as students. Mr. Nam received a masters degree in architecture from Kansas State University, and came to work for a Trenton firm in 1970.

The Nams and their three children lived in Bucks County, Pa., for many years, while Mr. Nam worked for several architectural firms in the Princeton area. He has since opened his own firm in Woodbridge, and the family moved to Princeton four years ago.

"I never thought I would open this big a restaurant," says Mrs. Nam, looking around with a laugh as her employees set 80 seats for dinner. "My dream was a tea house, with some cakes, some scones, some sushi..."

The dream ran into reality, and after much research, she determined that a tea house alone would not be able to support itself financially. It was then that she began researching the restaurant business, paying particular attention to the successful Asian restaurants in New York City.

by. Since then, Community Park has decreased the number of his classes from two to one because many students dropped out.

She added that he had acted recklessly, endangering the health of children, by leaving a room unlocked so that two pupils, unknown to anyone, were able to enter to practice their instruments. "Fortunately," she said, "a teacher heard the music."

Bill Cirullo, principal of Riverside School, said Mr. Bussey was unable to meet time lines and deadlines, had signed up students for instrumental music without consulting their parents, and, while being observed, wasted 16 of 30 class minutes in clerical tasks.

"He has been unable to respond to a sincere effort to assist him," said Johnson Park School Principal John Kazmark. "I anticipate we will recommend taking disciplinary action during the coming school year."

The teacher was the subject of disciplinary action last year, when the School Board voted to hold back his salary increment.

Mr. Bussey was asked by School Board President David Robbins whether he wished to comment about these charges.

"This is discrimination," said Mr. Bussey, who is African-American. "I have been discriminated against."

Mr. Kazmark said that it was clear to the principals that the music teacher's performance was unacceptable. He added that they had not yet determined what their recommendation to the School Board on the appropriate disciplinary action would be.

Board Member John Clearwater said it was surprising there could be 25 days of no instruction. "Is there no remedy in our procedures?" he asked. No one in the administration responded to his question.

Union Vote

paragraph pointing out that "most" current benefits and personnel practices would be open to negotiation. Listed were health benefits, title classifications, salaries, longevity, hours of work, time-off, uniforms, grievance and disciplinary procedures.

Don Dileo, staff representative for AFSCME Council 73, has suggested that the reason the vote was so lopsided may have been because employees were afraid of losing health benefits. He said the underlying message to the fact sheet was that employees should not vote for the union because they would lose their existing health benefits.

The fact sheet also included questions about the bargaining process, whether public employees can strike, how a union supports itself, what it means to be represented and whether a union contract will protect an employee against layoffs.

Township Administrator James J. Pascale characterized the election result as a "vote of confidence" in the Township and in Township Committee.

As a result of Friday's decision, AFSCME cannot organize another vote in the Township on unionization for at least a year.

tions. For Township property owners, this meeting will take place Tuesday, March 28, at 7 in the Valley Road building. For Borough residents, it will be on Wednesday, March 29, also at 7 in Borough Hall.

Ms. Caskey describes Mr. Morris as a Yale graduate who has had his own appraisal business for 15 years. He has done revaluation of properties in Hunterdon County as well as Franklin Township. The firm is thoroughly conversant with computerization and will assist the Princeton assessor's office in putting the finishing touches to its computerized system, which is expected to make it possible to update property assessments on a regular basis without having to rely on a costly revaluation by an outside firm.

Mr. Morris or one of his associates will visit and photograph from the front each of the 5,351 individual properties in the Township and the 2,699 properties in the Borough. This total includes taxable properties as well as exempt, vacant as well as residential and commercial, apartments as well as single family homes.

No visits will be made until after the Town Meetings are held. MGM Associates will send postcards in advance to the property owners in a particular neighborhood they plan to visit. They will also notify the police of their whereabouts on a daily basis and will be wearing special badges with photo identification that have been approved by the police.

If a homeowner is not home, the firm will call to make an appointment to visit in the evening or on a Saturday.

Governing Bodies Mull Joint Agency Budgets

Township Administrator James J. Pascale is fond of saying that crafting a municipal budget is more an art than a science.

At Monday night's four-hour joint session of Township Committee and Borough Council to approve the operating budgets for a dozen or so joint agencies, neither art nor science was very much in evidence. Elected officials, some old hands and some brand new to the process, groped for numbers that would eventually find their way into the respective municipal budgets they must adopt in an atmosphere that seemed cordial but slightly chaotic.

Despite the ongoing buzz of comments and asides that made it difficult to hear the votes, and despite the lack of a break-out agency by agency that would make it clear — to the participants as well as to the public — what was being voted on, some 11 budgets were approved. Yet to come were the budgets of the Princeton Public Library, the Sewer Operating Committee, Solid Waste Disposal and Crosstown '62, which were scheduled to be reviewed Tuesday night at Borough Hall as TOWN TOPICS went to press.

TOPICS Of the Town

Some were easy, like the Commission on Aging, whose budget for 1995 totals $356 for things like postage and photocopying, the same amount as last year.

More difficult was the Joint Advisory Cable TV Commission budget, which would be bringing in new revenue in terms of subscriber fees and franchise fees in the Borough and Township as well as one-time payments of $50,000 and $20,000 that were obligated under the agreement to renew C-Tec's cable TV franchise. Moreover, neither of the administrators nor any of the elected officials had had time to analyze this particular budget.

"Are you building a budget on money coming in, or on program needs?" Township Committeeman Stephen Frakt asked at one point. Township Committeewoman Phyllis Marchand pointed out the "non-recurring" items on both the revenue and expense side had to do with the fact that C-Tec would be implementing the municipal and public service programming that the community asked for when the franchise agreement was negotiated.

In the end the group approved a number (not specified) for budget purposes with no authority to spend, pending clarification by the administrators.

Against All Budgets

When it came to the Princeton Environmental Commission budget ($758 as the Township share, $374 for the Borough), Borough Councilman Roger Martindell announced that he would be voting against all agency budgets — and also the Borough budget — not because he had any animus against a particular agency but because in his view expenses in the Borough budget are too high and the effect on the taxpayer too onerous.

When Mayor Reed challenged him to indicate where services might be curtailed, Mr. Martindell ducked. He said the Borough should work more closely in arriving at "joint service arrangements" — he mentioned the police and public works — and it was not doing so. Secondly, he said the Borough should be looking at increasing revenues from non-profit agencies and was not doing so.

Borough Council members are evidently familiar with Mr. Martindell's speech and teased him about it during the evening, especially when he contradicted himself and voted for something they expected him to vote against.

The Fire Department was praised for having reduced its operating budget, but there were questions about the capital budget, specifically the request for 18 new pagers at $444 apiece. The budget was approved.

Predictably, given the controversy surrounding the idea of employing Civil Rights Director Ovie Lattimore to fill the vacant welfare director position, these two budgets were scrutinized more for what they indicate about policy than for what they say about expenditures. Borough budget worksheets reflected the Borough's vote to consolidate the two positions; however, the Township had not formally committed itself to reducing the civil rights director to a part time position.

Borough Councilman David Goldfarb pointed out that it wasn't "logical" to approve the salary of a full time civil rights director when the director would actually be spending part of his time at the welfare office. He voted against Mr. Martindell's motion to approve the civil rights budget that reflected what the Borough had approved.

Filling Both Roles

Township Committee seemed reluctant to take this step, until Romona Ifuff, chair of the Civil Rights Commission, said that the Commission is "happy" with the current system, and Mr. Lattimore himself said he had "no problem" filling both roles. He asked for part time secretarial help and said that with it he would be able to offer a "consolidated social service" that would provide more benefits and not just to the disenfranchised.

A decision as to whether the welfare office should move to the Borough, or the civil rights office to the Township was postponed to another time. The old-timers in the group tried to keep the discussion focused on the numbers; newcomers kept raising policy issues, like this one.

Mr. Goldfarb objected to the Corner House budget, saying that it had gone up more than other joint agency budgets and at a higher rate than the Borough budget. "What is it about this program that makes it more important than others?" he asked. He moved to delete the filling of a vacancy with a part time counselor at $16,000. The vote on his motion was tied, with Borough Mayor Marvin Reed casting the deciding vote not to delete the position.

Mayor Reed also provided the deciding vote in the next motion to approve the Corner House budget. Throughout the evening Committeeman Carl Mayer raised questions about health and automobile insurance, noting that these items often constituted large percentages of an agency's total operating budget.

Recreation Director Jack Roberts appealed to have some of the $4,135 for attending conferences that had been cut out of the municipal portion of the Recreation Department's budget reinstated. Before this could be resolved, Councilwoman Sandra Starr intervened to ask whether the Recreation Department was complying with the integrated pest management policy approved by Council and Committee in regard to the use of herbicides on playing fields.

She tried to get a line item for herbicides deleted but was told it was within the Recreation Department's Revolving Fund, made up of user fees, over which the governing bodies have no authority.

Committee and Council both voted to approve the Recreation budget totalling $438,817, including $1,250 for conferences. There were no capital requests.

Health Dept. Budget

Next came the Health Department, which has lost a couple of people due to retirement, so its overall budget was also down. However, the department and the Health Commission were not happy with the idea of filling one of these positions with one part time person to cover the office in the morning and one part time person who would be shared in the afternoon with the Borough Police Department.

In the end it was agreed that the Health Department needs to be covered at all hours, and an operating budget taking this into account was about to be approved by both governing bodies when Mr. Pascale mentioned that the budget should reflect $8,000 for a part time housing inspector to do inspections in the Township. He said this would be a direct charge to the Township, reimbursable by the fees charged.

Mr. Goldfarb objected,

Mayoral Endorsement Up to PCDO Members

At its meeting Saturday, the Princeton Community Democratic Organization (PCDO) executive committee voted to permit the general membership to decide whether it wished to endorse a mayoral candidate in the June primary.

Mayor Marvin Reed and Councilman Mark Freda are both seeking the Democratic nomination for Borough Mayor.

The PCDO will hold a local candidates' night meeting on April 9, at which time members will be asked whether they want to endorse Mr. Reed or Mr. Freda, or if they prefer making no endorsement.

Borough Councilpersons Roger Martindell and Sandra Starr, whose terms expire this year, are expected to run for another term on Council. So far, no other candidates for Council, Democratic or Republican, have filed.

The deadline for filing a nominating petition for the November election is April 13.

saying that the costs are inevitably and invariably more than the wage paid to the part time inspector. He said the Township should arrange for its housing inspections out of one of its own agencies, or it should contribute an additional amount to cover the administrative costs.

The Township has just introduced an ordinance that limits housing inspections to dwellings that are not owner-occupied. However, it still reads that housing inspections are under the jurisdiction of the Health Department. Mayor Tuck pointed out that inspections have not taken place for two years and are urgently needed.

It was agreed that higher fees may have to be set to cover the cost.

Last up was the Planning Board, whose operating budget is down $22,000, thanks to the switch from a planning consultant to a full time in-house planner and the reduction of personnel in the planning office from three to two. However, the Planning Board had five capital requests, all having to do with computer equipment or software, of which four were granted.

Bid Awards in Township For Several Projects

Township Committee has awarded several bids on projects of interest to the community.

Golden Crown Contractors of Trenton were awarded a contract for $61,900 to make improvements to the Community Park pool complex to meet Americans With Disabilities (ADA) requirements. The scope of work includes installing concrete ramps to provide access to the pool deck areas, renovation of the men's and women's dressing and locker room areas, and restriping of the handicap parking spaces.

The work is being funded entirely through a Small Cities grant to the Township in the amount of $62,730. Work is expected to be completed before the pool opens on Memorial Day weekend.

A professional services agreement in the amount of $2,000 was awarded to Robert Sussna, architect, to supervise this work. Mr. Sussna surveyed all the Township facilities for ADA compliance and also designed the handicapped accessibility renovations for the pool complex.

On the advice of Jack Roberts, Recreation Director, Committee rejected the bids received for replastering the main pool because they came in well over the $100,000 that Committee somewhat reluctantly agreed to last fall. According to Mr. Roberts the lowest bid was $159,000 and the highest was $239,000.

Mr. Roberts is working with Larry Raffaelli of Rocky Hill, a consulting engineer specializing in pool design and construction, to revise the bid specifications to decrease the costs associated with the project. Mr. Raffaelli told Committee recently that one way to do this was not to replace all the tiles, only those that come loose, and to reduce the five-year bonded guarantee requirement to two years. He said the latter measure might increase the number of bidders.

Canoe Concession

Committee has also approved an agreement with Steve Androsko to run the canoe rental concession at Turning Basin Park for the 1995 season. Mr. Androsko will pay the Township $1,100, the same as last year, to operate the concession. Prices for rentals will remain as they were last year, namely $9 for the first hour, $4 for each additional hour, and $30 as the daily minimum. These rates are per canoe, tax included.

The canoe concession will be open from 9 to 7 on Saturday, Sunday and holidays from April through October. In June, July and August, the concession will open from 11 to 5 weekdays, except Tuesday when it will be closed. This represents a slight cutback in hours. Robert Kiser, Township engineer, told Committee that Mr. Androsko had run the concession in a satisfactory manner during the 1994 season and he did not know of any other entity having an interest in running it this year.

Nassau Street Brew Pub Finally Opens

Its many delays behind it, the Triumph Brewing Company opened for business at 138 Nassau Street on Tuesday at 4 p.m. Princeton's first brew pub, it features a 30-foot cathedral ceiling, alcoves, balconies, and three tiers of stainless steel brewing tanks.

Opening day couldn't have been sweeter, with warm temperatures and a bright spring sun. The brew pub had originally planned to open last fall in the building that had formerly housed Marita's Cantina, Hudibras, and a bowling alley, but numerous delays resulted in a delay to March.

A full menu is available and there is seating for approximately 200 people. Because the Disch Company, owners of the brew pub, purchased the full liquor license formerly owned by Marita's, a full line of alcoholic beverages will be available.

Before the project could become a reality, the Disch Company had to overcome a state law forbidding the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages on the same premises. Gov. Jim Florio signed the bill changing the law in July 1993.

The pub's owners are Ray and Erica Disch and Adam Rechnitz. They had hoped to open the first brew pub in the state, but were beaten by The Ship Inn of Milford, which opened in January.

During the reconstruction of the brew pub, contractors discovered earlier eras of history as each layer of floor was removed, going back to the flooring from an old livery stable.

Brew pubs became popular in California in the mid-eighties, then spread to Oregon, and are now working their way east. In the past decade, more than 400 brew pubs have opened across the United States.

Trinity Church Plans Renovations, Expansion

Trinity Church is planning renovations and additions to its facilities located between Mercer Street and Stockton Street. The Planning Board has scheduled a concept review of the plans at its meeting on Thursday.

The proposed renovations and additions are to be accomplished in three phases. Phase one involves interior renovations and a small addition to the "school house," the oldest surviving structure of the 160-year old church. Built in 1849 and fronting on Mercer Street, the "school house" was designed as a Sunday School facility for the parish and a weekday school for the Negro children of Princeton.

Today it houses administrative offices that are badly in need of renovation, reconfiguration and upgrading for safety and handicap accessibility. A new entrance with ramp is proposed to be constructed fronting on the circular driveway along with some reconfiguration of the driveway itself. Additional space will be gained by reconfiguring existing offices and hallways and by adding a couple of second floor classrooms above an area that currently has a flat roof.

Phase 2 also calls for extending the narthex on the Stockton Street side of the sanctuary and building a covered walkway that will provide a link to the new classroom building that is proposed as phase 3, as well as to the existing Pierce Hall, where an assembly room, kitchen and classrooms are located.

Additions to Pierce Hall

Phase 2 involves renovations and additions to Pierce Hall itself. This building was built in this century and like the "school house" has an entrance on Mercer Street. Phase 2 includes the renovations to the kitchen and provision of new lavatories, stairs and an elevator. It also calls for the construction of a new chapel that will double as a gathering room. This two-story glassed-in area will look out on the tiny cemetery between the apse and Pierce Hall in which the founding families of the church are buried.

Phase 3 calls for a new three-story classroom building to be constructed along the Stockton Street side of the church complex. The basement, first and second floors of this building will have three classrooms each, with a separate area for youth activities on the third floor.

21st Century Plan

Trinity has embarked on a campaign to raise $8 million to fund implementing what it calls the 21st Century Plan. The plan includes a $1 million permanent endowment for outreach and a $1 million endowment for facilities maintenance.

According to Chris McCrudden, who chairs the 21st Century building committee with John Sully, funds are in hand to assure phase 1 and a large part of phase 2. The parish hopes to be able to carry out phase 1 and phase 2 in the near future sequentially.

No Council Decision On Merchandise Display

A long-standing item on Borough Council's "to do" list is the question of whether to ban all merchandise displays from public sidewalks, or whether to allow such displays, but regulate their size.

This became an issue in January 1994, when Witherspoon Street hardware store owner Irv Urken won a judicial ruling stating that the Borough either must ban, or must permit, all merchandise displays. The Borough was given permission, however, to regulate display size. It could legally confine all merchandise to within three feet of the building.

Mr. Urken had challenged the Borough ordinance confining sidewalk displays to books, flowers, plants, vegetables, and newspapers. In his ruling, East Windsor Municipal Court Judge Samuel Sachs said that regulating the category of goods permitted to be displayed outside a shop was "ambiguous at best and discriminatory at worst."

At last Tuesday night's Borough Council meeting, the Zoning Board of Adjustment weighed in with its ideas on how to deal with the issue. Although the Zoning Board regulates only privately owned property, there was general agreement that the rules should be the same for both private property and Borough-owned land.

In a memo signed by Zoning Board Chair Barrie S. Royce, the Board stated its opposition to the outdoor sale of merchandise. It said that most municipalities require commercial uses to be carried on inside buildings.

The Zoning Board suggested that Council might consider authorizing specific market days or festival days throughout the year when outdoor sales would be generally permitted. If such events work well, the Zoning Board said, perhaps they could be held weekly or monthly during the spring, summer, and fall months.

Currently, there is no Borough ordinance regulating outdoor displays in the public right of way. By doing nothing — the path Borough Council has followed for the past year — merchants will continue to have the opportunity to display what they want, where they want.

It should be stated that efforts have been made over the past several months to develop a new ordinance which would set criteria on display size. But such proposed ordinances have not moved forward. There is a small amount of sentiment for just keeping hands off and continuing the present laissez faire approach.

Councilman Mark Freda urged Council to make a decision. He suggested that displays three feet deep, but no wider than five feet, might be considered.

"I don't think clutter is appealing," he said. "The more that is allowed takes away from the attractiveness. I think it should be tightly controlled."

Borough Attorney Michael Herbert said that Judge Sachs' ruling was wrong, and that it was not binding. Council had decided in closed session a year ago not to appeal the decision.

Councilman David Goldfarb asked the Zoning Board to come back with other suggestions that were somewhat more liberal than its current ones.

The discussion completed, Council said it would place the issue on a future agenda. No date was selected.

Robbery on Lytle Street Leads to Assault Arrest

Borough police arrested Clay Street resident Linda Ross on various charges last Sunday, after she entered a Lytle Street apartment, stole a purse, and assaulted the victim.

According to police reports, Ross, who is 39 years old, entered an unlocked apartment on Clay Street, and was going through a purse when the 62-year-old female resident of the apartment confronted her.

The victim attempted to resist, said police, but Ross kicked and bit her. She then showed the victim a knife, causing her to retreat. Ross then left the apartment through the front door, where she was seen by two other witnesses.

Police officers were dispatched to Ross's home at 79 Clay Street later that day. One officer guarded the back door, while another knocked on the front. Ross attempted to exit through the back door, and was placed under arrest by the waiting officer.

She was charged with burglary, robbery, aggravated assault, unlawful possession of a weapon, and possession of a weapon for unlawful purposes. Bail was set at $7,500, and Ms. Ross was taken to the county jail pending a court appearance.

Police reported that a young man using a false identification attempted to purchase alcohol at Community Liquors North last Friday at 8:10 p.m.

The store clerk confiscated the identification card, and the man left the store.

An incident of criminal mischief and harassment was reported at a Spruce Circle residence. The front door to the home of a 70-year-old woman was battered with a vacuum cleaner pipe some time on March 11. Police reported that they are following up on some leads in the case.

An 8-foot wooden toboggan was stolen from the front of Urken's Supply on Witherspoon Street sometime between 10 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. on March 12. The $150 toboggan had been on display on the sidewalk in front of the store.

The room of two Lockhart Hall residents on the University campus was burglarized between 10 a.m. and 2:20 p.m. on March 8. Taken from the unlocked room were two cameras: a Yashica 35mm and an Olympus 35mm, valued at $250 apiece. Cash totaling $40 and a bottle of Obsession cologne worth $40 were also taken.

Candidates' Forum

A School Board candidates' forum will be held on Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Witherspoon Presbyterian Church. It is sponsored by Concerned Parents of Princeton and the Mercer County Hispanic Association.

The Rev. John White, pastor of Witherspoon Presbyterian, will serve as moderator.

Two Princeton Students Report Flashing Incident

A Princeton student was made the victim of a flasher on Sunday night, as she unloaded a car near a Foulke Hall archway on University Place between 8:45 p.m. and 9 p.m.

According to police, the victim was in the Foulke Hall archway when she heard a shreik coming from the inner courtyard. Immediately afterward, a man ran past her, with his pants falling down.

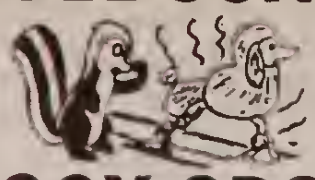

The victim assumed that the man had run away, and continued to unload her car. Moments later, she turned to see the same man standing in the archway, exposing himself to her.

The man left the scene, and the victim called the police. The culprit was described as a white male between 28 and 30 years of age. He is approximately 5'10 and of medium to small build with dark red hair and a dark red beard. He was wearing a dark colored baseball cap and a windbreaker of similar color.

While police were taking a statement from the first victim, a second student came

"Three Strikes" Bill Moves Forward

The State Assembly has approved a bill that would impose mandatory life prison sentences for criminals convicted of three or more violent crimes.

Gov. Christie Whitman, however, may conditionally veto the measure. Her administration, which was unsuccessful in its effort to make changes in the hill, will examine the measure to make certain it exclusively targets violent, repeat offenders, according to an administration spokesperson.

The bill applies to the offenses of murder, kidnapping, sexual assault, possession of a destructive device for an unlawful purpose, aggravated assault, robbery, and illegal possession of a firearm.

NJPIRG Funds Cut

The State Assembly has voted against placing an automatic charge on Rutgers University tuition bills to support the New Jersey Public Interest Research Group (NJPIRG), an environmental and consumer lobbying group.

The Rutgers University Senate and the students, through campus referendums, had agreed to place NJPIRG on the tuition bill for automatic funding. Tuition payers would make a $7.50 donation each semester unless they check "no" on a small box.

The measure now goes to the State Senate for consideration.

Altercation Turns Ugly: Borough Men Arrested

Two Borough men were arrested last week after threatening each other with a knife and an axe, respectively. According to police, 35-year-old Andrew C. Wells, of 258 John Street, and 50-year-old Mertyn L. Marshall, of 10 Maple Terrace, became involved in an argument over who had the right to enter a certain Clay Street apartment.

The argument escalated into a fight, and Mr. Wells pulled out a pocket knife and began to threaten Mr. Marshall.

According to police, Mr. Marshall then entered his home and reappeared with a heavy axe, with which he threatened Mr. Wells.

Both men were arrested and charged with assault, possession of a weapon, and possession of a weapon for unlawful purposes.

They were released with a summons to appear in court.

A Princeton Borough man was in jail for lack of $25,000 bail on Tuesday, following a domestic violence incident last week. Police charged 20-year-old Donald Raleigh Schuster, of 16 Vandeventer Avenue, with aggravated assault after he attacked a Princeton Borough woman on March 6.

According to police, the victim's legs, body, and neck were all severely bruised as the result of the beating. Mr. Schuster is also alleged to have grabbed the victim by the throat.

In Princeton Township, police reported that a woman's purse was stolen while she was eating at Conte's Bar on the evening of March 7. Between 7:30 and 8:30 p.m., she said, the purse was taken from the floor near the table where she was sitting.

Valued itself at $35, the purse contained $12 in cash.

Two tires were punctured on a 1984 Buick that was left parked on Birch Avenue between 3 p.m. on March 6 and 6:30 the next morning.

The estimated damage amounted to $70.

forward to say that on December 13, 1994, she, too, had been the victim of a flasher. The man answered to the same description as the first victim's harasser, she said.

Presumably, there is a third victim, who would account for the shreik heard by the student in the archway, but police were unable to identify her.

A Princeton University student who saw his bicycle being stolen last Wednesday morning followed the thief and wound up retrieving the bike.

Police report that at about 11:45 a.m., the victim saw his locked bicycle taken from the Joline Archway by a white male in his early 20's with a goatee and wearing a baseball cap. The thief put the locked bicycle on his shoulder, and simply walked away with it.

The victim followed his retreating bicycle out onto University Place, where the thief spotted his pursuer and dropped the bike, fleeing down Edwards Place.

The thief was not apprehended.

Other bicycle owners were not as lucky this week. An unlocked Mongoose bike was taken from the Fisher Hall Pavilion between 7 p.m. on Wednesday and 9 a.m. the next morning. It was valued at $175.

A Schwinn Sidewinder mountain bike valued at $250 was stolen from the front area of Edward Hall between 8 p.m. and 11:15 p.m. on Thursday.

Police were informed by University security personnel that a student lost a gold bangle bracelet valued at $1,650 on either Nassau or Prospect Street last month.

The bracelet was lost between 8 p.m. on February 17 and 4 p.m. on February 19. It contained a row of diamonds weighing a total of .91 carats.

An unlocked car in the parking lot near McCaffrey's was entered and robbed of a car phone valued at $200.

The theft occurred between 8 p.m. on March 11 and 4 the next morning.

Another unlocked car was robbed the next evening on Foulet Drive. A 1986 Ford was entered, and the thief took a Craig brand AM/FM radio/cassette player valued at $200.

The theft occurred between 8 and 11:30 p.m. on March 12.

A 16-year-old Pine Street resident was arrested and charged with possession of alcohol and use of an electronic paging device on Sunday.

Police were called to Tamasi's Texaco on Bayard Lane, after the owner reported two men acting suspiciously on his property.

Officers arrived on the scene at approximately 5:32 p.m. and found two individuals standing across the road from the gas station.

While questioning them, officers noticed two beer cans in the pocket of the younger of the two. He was placed under arrest, and a search uncovered an electronic pager in his possession. State law prohibits minors from using electronic paging devices.

The second individual, who is 28 years old, was not arrested.

The minor was released into the custody of his parents.

$70 Million Building Plan Is Announced by ETS

Educational Testing Service is planning a $70 million expansion and consolidation of its facilities in Mercer County over the next three years.

According to Ray Nicosia, the testing company expects to save $5 million a year by replacing leased space with its own buildings and by consolidating staff at its facilities. ETS recently purchased a 30-acre site off Lower Ferry Road in Ewing where it plans to break ground in April for a new 270,000-square-foot warehouse and office building.

The company is seeking $28.7 million in financing through the New Jersey Economic Development Authority for this building, which will be on property located next to space it is currently leasing. According to Mr. Nicosia, the company is planning to let the lease expire on two of the five buildings it is leasing in Ewing. Some employees from the Rosedale Road campus will be moving to Ewing.

ETS has Lawrence Township Planning Board approval for four buildings totaling some 447,000 square feet that may be built on the Rosedale Road campus. It is planning to build two of them, both 105,000 square feet, in the near future. They will be located near the Henry Chauncey Conference Center. One is expected to be completed by October, 1996, the other by October, 1998.

ETS is seeking an additional $41.3 million in EDA financing to construct these two buildings and to renovate an existing building at the Rosedale Road campus. Employees from two buildings which it has been occupying at the Carnegie Center will be redeployed to Rosedale Road or to the new building in Ewing.

The company is gradually subletting space at Carnegie Center that it does not need, Mr. Nicosia said.

Rotary Club to Hold March 26 Radio Auction

The Rotary Club of Princeton will hold its annual radio auction to benefit local charities on Sunday, March 26 from noon until 4 p.m. It will be broadcast live on radio station WHWH 1350. To make a bid, listen to the broadcast and call 497-6743, 497-6714 or 497-6715.

Items being auctioned include a 1993 Jeep Cherokee; round-trip coach airline tickets from New York to London and round-trip first-class tickets on the British Rail system; a Henry Martin cartoon; gift certificates to restaurants and stores; vacation home; theater tickets; and bed-and-breakfast packages. Other items include professional consultations; an architectural walking tour of Princeton; and unique items such as a custom-made fly fishing rod.

Proceeds from the auction and other Rotary fundraisers are given back to the community in the form of contributions to local charities and organizations. Last year the Rotary Club of Princeton gave more than $20,000 to needy groups.

Beneficiaries included Corner House, the Princeton Senior Resource Center, Newgrange Community Outreach Center, the Princeton Small Animal Rescue League, the Mercer Alliance for the Mentally Ill, the Arts Council, and Habitat for Humanity.

Update by Arts Council On Talks with Borough

The Arts Council of Princeton has announced that it believes substantial progress is being made in its discussions with Borough Council concerning its continuing occupancy of the Borough-owned building at 102 Witherspoon Street, which has been leased to the organization for more than a dozen years.

Representatives of the Arts Council and of Borough Council, as well as Mayor Marvin Reed and Administrator Tom Shannon, met recently to explore the alternatives for keeping the Arts Council in its present quarters and for ensuring it of sufficient length of tenure to enable it to raise the funds needed to renovate and expand the building.

Arts Council representatives — including Anne Reeves, director, and board members Peter Bienstock, Marc Brahaney, Karen Nichols, Carolyn Landis and Suzanne Goldenson — felt the Council members valued the Arts Council's work and recognized its contribution to the quality of life and economic vitality of the community.

The Arts Council acknowledged the Borough's substantial contribution to its work to date, including making the building available at an affordable rent and performing helpful maintenance and repairs. The Council also expressed the hope that the present discussions move ahead quickly over the next few weeks, to the point where Arts Council supporters can feel confident enough of the organization's future in the building to begin serious fundraising efforts for the task ahead.

New Trustee Is Named To Public Library Board

Township Mayor Michele Tuck has appointed Harry Levine of Crestview Drive to the Princeton Public Library Board of Trustees. He succeeds Alison Harris, who resigned earlier in the year because of a possible conflict of interest with her new job at Ford Farewell Gatsch & Mills, architects.

Mr. Levine is president of Carodan Corp., a real estate advisory and development firm in Princeton. A graduate of Yale University, where he received his bachelor of science degree, he also earned a master's of business administration at the University of Chicago. He was a commercial banker in Chicago before becoming involved in real estate some 20 years ago.

Mr. Levine served as chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Library Facilities established in 1988 by the Library trustees to explore the community's needs for library services over the next 20 to 25 years. Earlier he served on the Board of Education for six years, from 1981 to 1987. He served as chairman of the board's finance committee and its program committee.

He is a trustee of the D&R Greenway and treasurer of Corner House Foundation. He has also served on the Arts Council board and as treasurer of the Princeton Youth Fund. His wife Ellen is vice chair of the Township Zoning Board.

"Princeton Roaring 20" To Sing at Art Museum

Students and the community at large are invited to a special night of entertainment and guided art tours Thursday, March 23, from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Princeton University Art Museum.

There will be no admission charge.

The Princeton Roaring 20, the popular campus singing group, will present a program of contemporary music in the Sterling Morton, Class of 1906, Gallery at 6 p.m. Following the performance, tours of the art collection will be offered by undergraduate guides at 7, 7:30, 8 and 8:30.

"This is the second of a series of evenings to reinforce the idea of the art museum as a center on campus for both academic interest and recreation," said Charles K. Steiner, associate director of the museum. "The program on March 23 will be dedicated especially to graduate students, but we are inviting the entire community to attend as well."

Collaborating with the Art Museum is the Office of the Dean of the Graduate School, the Graduate College House Committee, the Graduate Student Union, and Undergraduate Guides.

Leslie Johnson, lecturer in ecology and evolutionary biology at Princeton University, will give a slide talk titled "Adrift Down Under: On the Australian Ark" Sunday at 3 at Mountain Lakes House. The talk is the next in the "Tea and Talk" series sponsored by Friends of Princeton Open Space.

Dr. Johnson is a graduate of Radcliffe who received her Ph.D. from Berkeley. She did her Ph.D. research in Costa Rica and her post doctorate work in Wurtzburg under Martin Lindauer. Before coming to Princeton she was an associate professor at the University of Iowa.

Dr. Johnson is currently engaged in research on tropical insects. She has been to Australia several times.

Tea will follow the talk.

African-American Activist To Speak at Princeton

Mandy Carter, founder and director of the National Black Gay and Lesbian Forum's "National Call to Resist Campaign," will visit Princeton University Thursday and Friday, March 23 and 24. She will give a formal speech the first day and speak at a brown-bag lunch discussion the following day.

Ms. Carter, who has worked for progressive change in communities and churches for more than 25 years, was an anti-war activist with the War Resisters League and later initiated a political campaign to defeat U.S. Senator Jesse Helms of North Carolina. As director of the "National Call to Resist Campaign," she is leading an effort in African-American churches and communities to counter the anti-gay agenda of the religious right.

Her major presentation, "Race, Sex, Gender, Religion: Bridging Communities, Effecting Change," will take place on Thursday, March 23, at 4:30 at Betts Auditorium. It will focus on the commonalities of oppression and the movement toward social action.

The following day, she will speak at a brown-bag lunch discussion on "Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Legislation and the New Congress: What's Happening on the Hill?" at 106 Aaron Burr Hall. Drinks and dessert will be provided.

Both events are free and open to the public. For more information, call the Princeton University Women's Center at 258-5565.

Author Events Planned At Micawber Books

Micawber Books, 110 Nassau Street, will hold a publication party for Jennifer Egan and Katherine Mosby on Thursday, March 23 from 5:30 to 7:30 to celebrate the publications of their first novels.

Jennifer Egan's novel, The Invisible Circus, grapples with the legacy of the 1960s both in its inspiration and the burden to the generations that immediately followed it.

Jennifer Egan was born in Chicago and grew up in San Francisco. Her short stories have appeared in The New Yorker, Mademoiselle, GQ, Ploughshares, and other publications. She lives in New York.

In Katherine Mosby's novel, Private Altars, a small southern town in the 1920s becomes the stage for a woman's poignant struggle to provide her life with more meaning and charm than fate has appointed her.

Katherine Mosby, a poet, teaches writing courses at Columbia and NYU, and conducts poetry workshops in New York City public schools. She lives in New York.

Student Art Show Set At the Shopping Center

During the month of April, the artwork of the Princeton Regional Schools' students will be featured in an art exhibit at the Princeton Shopping Center, which is underwriting the event. Entitled "Lobby for the Arts," the show is coordinated by Partnership for Arts Education, an organization that supports and promotes the arts in the schools.

Artist and Partnership member Barbara Taylor is organizing the event. The idea is a natural outgrowth of P.A.E.'s mission, she said. "Our group felt this would be a great way to show off the exciting things in the arts that are happening in our schools." Student works from all the District's schools will be displayed in store windows and lobbies throughout the shopping center.

The show will be launched with an opening party on Saturday, April 1, at 1 p.m. at Encore Books and Music. It will include a poetry reading by Princeton E.S.L. (English as a Second Language) students. To close the event, Ms. Taylor will lead aspiring artists, who are invited to come ready to paint, in creating a community mural on a shopping center wall on Saturday, April 29 at 1 p.m.

Princeton's Many Specialized Libraries Are a Town Treasure

With the demand on its resources growing continuously, the Princeton Public Library could be considered a victim of its own popularity. Its space and resources remain strained and stretched while the two Princetons lumber slowly toward the creation of a larger facility.

Meanwhile, Princeton has been, and remains, a reading and research town. To its good fortune, there are other, more specialized libraries that can be used to relieve some of the pressure at the town library.

These include the specialized libraries of Princeton University, the Princeton Medical Center, Westminster Choir College of Rider University, and Princeton Theological Seminary.

All are located in town, and are open for access to the public. In some, borrowing privileges are available for a fee. Best of all, they provide an alternative site for research or reading in a number of different fields.

Princeton University

Although Firestone Library has been closed to the public for a number of years, this is only one of two Princeton University libraries with controlled access. The other is the Marquand Library of Art and Archaeology in McCormick Hall.

"The branches of the library system do not have controls," said Donald W. Koepp, Princeton University librarian. "People can walk in and use them. "But," he cautioned, "if you're planning to bring a troop of school children, they may tell you not to come in."

Mr. Koepp pointed out that access did not include borrowing privileges.

Firestone Library, the jewel in the crown of the University system, may be accessed by paying a fee. This fee does not include borrowing privileges.

The cost is $15 for one week of access, $31 for one month, and $128 for one year. The fee for an individual card that carries borrowing privileges is $329. Princeton alumni may obtain a borrower's card at one half the usual fee. Residents of Mercer, Middlesex, and Somerset counties may purchase a pro-rated borrower's card.

These are the libraries in the University system that do not have controlled access. Their hours are generally posted in front of Firestone Library, or can be obtained by phone.

Astrophysics Library, Peyton Hall, 258-3820; Biology Library, Guyot Hall, 258-3235; Chemistry Library, Henry C. Frick Laboratory, room 219, 258-6173; Engineering Library, Engineering Quadrangle, 258-3200; Fine Hall Library (pure mathematics, physics, statistics), Fine Hall, 258-3187;

Geology Library, Guyot Hall, 258-3267; Gest Oriental Library and East Asian Collections, Jones-Palmer Hall, 258-3182; Population Research Library, 21 Prospect Avenue, 258-4874; Psychology Library, Green Hall, 258-3239; Public Policy Papers at the Seeley G. Mudd Manuscript Library, 258-6325; School of Architecture Library, Architecture Building, 258-3256; Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs Library, Woodrow Wilson School, 258-4782; and the Music Listening Library, Woolworth Center of Musical Studies, 258-4250.

The scope of the University branch library system is vast. The Engineering Library — which covers the subject areas of electrical, chemical, civil, mechanical and aerospace engineering; computer science, energy and environmental studies — contains 100,000 monographs and bound periodicals and 100,000 technical reports.

Subject areas in the Gest Oriental Library and East Asian Collections cover works in Chinese, Manchu, Mongolian, Tibetan, Japanese, and Korean.

The Geological Library has 285,000 maps and charts and aerial and satellite photographs. Maps cover 16 subject areas, including geophysics, climatology, topography, physiography, navigation, and urban and regional planning.

The Music Listening Library contains 27,000 LPs, 1,400 cassette recordings, and 5,000 CDs in the areas of classical music, jazz, blues, rock, and non-Western music.

Medical Center Library

Tucked in the basement of the medical arts building is a trove of useful medical information, the Princeton Medical Center Library. It is presided over by Louise Yorke, a knowledgeable and helpful librarian now in her 20th year with the medical center.

The public is welcome to use the library, but may borrow only through interlibrary loans from other libraries, including the Princeton Public.

Housed temporarily in a rabbit warren of small cozy rooms, the library currently subscribes to more than 175 journals annually, has approximately 2,000 textbooks in medicine, surgery, nursing, and related areas; a large selection of professional videos, slides, and audio tapes; a lateral file on various health topics, and computerized self-learning programs.

Computerized literature searches are available at a nominal fee.

Ms. Yorke, who is helped by Library Assistant Elizabeth McCutcheon and 11 volunteers, is also happy to obtain books from other members of the Central Jersey Consortium, which includes the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, St. Francis Medical Center, and Carrier Foundation.

In addition to a catalog of the Consortium's holdings, the Medical Center Library carries Index Medicus, a sort-of Reader's Guide to medicine.

The Library's collection of old medical books alone is worth a trip. Learn the latest in obstetrics, circa 1800; glance at Psychopothia Sexualis, and read an 1880 treatise on the diseases of women.

Videos, which can be watched at the library, include such subjects as signing, bicycle safety, breast feeding, and a wide variety of medical conditions. Slides and audios are also on hand.

A state-of-the-art research tool is InfoTrac, a user-friendly health-related data base on CD-Rom. After the area of interest is keyboarded, the computer will provide available information in a combination of lay and professional materials. These include abstracts or full texts of newspaper articles.

Tapping out "opium poppy," for example, will bring a startling warning to muffin lovers. In July 1992, Medical Update carried an article stating that poppy seed muffins may cost someone their job. The subhead read, "Urine drug testing and false positives."

PDQ, a computer system that gives up-to-date information on cancer treatment, is available too. It is a service of the National Cancer Institute for people with cancer and their families, and for doctors, nurses, and other health care professionals.

PDQ tells about the current treatments for most cancers, and about warning signs and how the cancer is found. It also lists information about research on new treatments (clinical trials), doctors who treat cancer, and hospitals with cancer programs.

"Many people from the community come here," said Ms. Yorke, who makes every effort to help people with research into health-related information. "We are primarily here to support the hospital, but people who want to know more about what is wrong with them find me."

Louise Yorke
Medical Center Library

The Medical Center Library is open Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.; Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; and Friday, 9 a.m. to noon.

Talbott Library
Westminster Choir College

The main library on Talbott's ground floor houses about 54,000 volumes, including books about music and other subjects, scores, and periodicals. But those whose main interest in music is listening are advised to walk up a flight of stairs to the Media Center.

There, members of the public are welcome to put on earphones and listen to their choice of about 9,000 sound recordings, or view a collection of commercial videotapes. Under the direction of Terry Simpkins, the center is open Monday through Thursday, from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Friday from 8:30 to 5; Saturday from 10 to 5; and Sunday from 2 to 10.

Most of the collection is on record, although there are a number of CDs as well. The focus is on classical music, with an emphasis on piano, organ, and choir.

And talk about easy listening. Just check the catalog, fill out a request slip, hand it in, and you will be given a record (or CD) and headphones.

The depth of the collection is noteworthy. The library has all of approximately 450 records that make up a particular anthology of American music, for example, and probably has on record all of Beethoven's music. "Not every performance," said Mr. Simpkins, "but the total output.

He said the library also features "a lot of opera, and a smattering of jazz, ethnic music, and gospel."

Although the video collection stresses music pedagogy, it also offers about 20 operas, Young People's concerts , and jazz and blues biographies.

Subjects of videotapes include a portrait of Glenn Gould, Franco Zeffirelli's 1967 film adaptation of The Taming of the Shrew, a concert version of Candide conducted by Leonard Bernstein; an Australian Opera production of Mozart's The Magic Flute and a 1967 performance of Puccini's La Boheme, conducted by Herbert von Karajan and produced and designed by Zeffirelli.

Included in the pedagogy collection are videotapes on how to play the piano, saxophone, French horn, and drums.

Questions such as, Is there a particular recording of a piece? Is the piece available on a CD? Has it ever been recorded? can be answered through use of the media center's data base.

The school's Talbott Library also houses The Performance Collection, a collection of about 6,000 titles of sacred and secular choral music in quantity; the Music Education Resource Collection; and the Organ Historical Society Archives.

Speer Library
Princeton Theological Seminary

For only the cost of a $5 access card, members of the community can read and research the extensive collection of the Princeton Theological Seminary's Speer Library. Borrowing privileges are also available.

The nearly half million items include 387,725 bound volumes, 63,364 pamphlets, and 24,944 non-book materials.

The main library complex consists of two connected buildings that function as a single entity. The earlier structure, opened in 1957, has space for 400,000 volumes. The newer building, dedicated last year, will accommodate an additional 350,000 volumes.

The library's main objective is to acquire comprehensively the basic works of western and, in translation, eastern religious traditions. On a standing-order basis, it adds all major sets, new critical editions, and scholarly monograph series currently published in the main fields of theological study.

The library is open 8:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Monday through Friday; 9 to 4:45 Saturday; and 7 a.m. to 10:45 p.m. Sunday.

Herculean Effort Boosted United Way Campaign

To the Editor, Town Topics:

On behalf of the United Way of Greater Mercer County and the many programs it funds, we thank each and every donor who contributed to our 1994-95 campaign. We raised $6,016,399, an increase of $16,399 over the amount raised last year by the two former organizations — United Way-Princeton Area Communities and Delaware Valley United Way.

In fact, we came within 5% of the ambitious goal we set for this year's campaign, thanks to a Herculean effort by volunteers, the corporate community, individual contributors and the United Way staff in the final four weeks of the campaign.

As Chairman of this fund-raising drive, I am gratified by the level of support that this community has shown. From the small business to the large corporation and from one end of the region to the other, you came through for your community. You have supported your United Way and made it possible for lives to be improved.

Your donation provides child care, senior services, counseling, and substance abuse prevention; your donation provides hope, as well as assistance to those less fortunate. Because of you, there will be smiles on the faces of children, the elderly and the disabled; and because of your support, differences will be made all over the greater Mercer County area.

In April volunteers from the community will begin to decide where your donations should go. If you would like to take part in this process, I invite you to call the United Way Office at 896-1912.

My deep belief in United Way will bring me back as Chair for the 1995/1996 campaign. I hope it will bring you back as well. Once again, thank you for supporting your United Way.

Adminstration's Tactic To "Hit Where It Hurts"

To the Editor, Town Topics:

I applaud and repeat the comments made by many fellow residents regarding the school board's threatening reaction to state aid reductions. For years we have faced the same battle, and the first tactic of the board and the administraton is to "hit where it hurts" and eliminate sports, arts, now librarians, nurses, child study teams, guidance counselors — rather than administration.

This of course brings out the support, strikes fear in the parents, and eventually gets a budget passed, referendum accepted and legislators to back down.

We all are faced with a changing society and by aging statisties alone, we live in a rapidly changing world. It seems apparent that those we have elected and those we pay as professionals and specialists in the area of educating our youngsters should be first and foremost able to accept and be leaders in change.

Our children need to be prepared for an international society which will be even more competitive as the world resources must support a growing population.

Take the responsibility we charged you with when we cast our vote. Stop the locked-in decision-making such as the hiring of an assistant administrator in late December when there was little time for public rebuttal (although, as always, this would not have made much difference).

Recently I have read a creative idea from one of our current board members regarding "Valley Road." With the cumulative education and experience of the members of the board, team work, responsive decisions and a focus on direct service to our children seem to be a simple charge.

Ettl Foundation Gift: Setting Record Straight

To the Editor, Town Topics:

Referring to the TOWN TOPICS article of March 1, "Ettl Farm Sculptor-in-Residence Designed New Iwo Jima Monument," I would like to correct the statement that the Ettl Foundation "has pledged $90,000 which will cover part nf the cost" [of Joseph Petrovies' horse monument].

Ninety thousand dollars was Mr. Petrovics' estimated cost for the total job when he asked for support from the Ettl Foundation. The Ettl Foundation would be willing tn contribute to this endeavor provided that Mr. Petrovics can find a suitable location in Princeton and a sponsor which is a not-for-profit.

A foundation cannot by law contribute to an individual, and the Ettl Foundation does not make gifts of the size suggested by the article.

JUDITH ETTL HAZEN
Trustee,
Alex J. Ettl Foundation

The public that supports the system and benefits from the system have asked you to be responsible to us as elected officials and paid personnel.

I repeat, look at where the administrative bloat is in Princeton, as our purse strings are wearing out.

Energy of Volunteers Sparked Mini-Conference

To the Editor, Town Topics:

Thank you for your articles on the White House conference on Aging mini-conference held in Princeton on February 26, sponsored by the Community without Walls and the Princeton Senior Resource Center.

The energy and enthusiasm of conference participants was palpable, and we thank everyone who spent the snowy Sunday afternoon with us.

Our report to the WHCoA will be completed and sent to Washington in early April. Copies of the report will be available for perusal at the Princeton Public Library and both locations of the Princeton Senior Resource Center (Spruce Circle and the Suzanne Patterson Center).

We'd also like to acknowledge and thank the 46 volunteers who worked tens of hours to plan and carry out the mini-conference. The success of the conference is largely due to the energy, thought and professionalism that these people brought to the tasks they volunteered to

New Ass't Superintendent A Much-Needed Position

To the Editor, Town Topics:

The current fiscal crisis in the Princeton Regional School district once more has created the traditional public outcry against high Valley Road administrative costs.

The truth is that Princeton, according to the 1994-95 Cost of Education Index, spends in central administration much less than the average district in the same socioeconomic group and in fact even less than the average district in New Jersey.

Citizens and teachers who insist that the board should be cutting administrators not teachers should be aware that this district is barely functioning as it is, and our administrators all work extremely hard. The facts are that administrators are needed, otherwise we all would happily do without.

On the other side, analyses of enrollment projections and need assessment might dictate recommending the reduction of some teaching positions. If so, board and administration have little say about which teachers should be laid off. According to the New Jersey law and the teachers' contract, seniority rules will decide who will go.

It is also worth repeating that Princeton has not received the state penalty because of high central administration costs, but because of excesses in non-instructional services, such as child-study teams, nurses and librarians, etc.

It is exactly in these areas that we should be down-sizing to bring ourselves in line with statewide norms and to avoid future penalties. One of the good aspects of the proposed budget is that indeed it takes us out of the penalty zone.

Particular attention these days has been focused on the fact that our district, after a long search, last December hired a new assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction, a much needed position to assure curriculum implementation and assessment throughout the district. This person is also in charge of bilingual and basic skill programs.

While this position (which we always have had in this district) was temporarily vacant, the work load was divided among several employees, without any substantial cost saving and with severe drawbacks in terms of efficiency and effectiveness.

Moreover, the salary of the new assistant superintendent is within the range of salaries that subject-area supervisors make in this distrct and below the salaries of all the principals.

There is no doubt, however, that administrators are very highly paid. This is a situation that the current board has not created, but inherited. To reverse it is not simple. By state law the salaries

Princeton's Elderly Carried Across Route 1 Or the Pennsylvania Border to End Their Days

To the Editor of Town Topics:

As I follow the story of the Planning Board's response to proposals for a Continuing Care Community in your columns, I am put in mind of the Japanese legends of obasuteyama, localized at Narayama in several famous films. Because of the pressure of people on the food supply, the story goes, inhabitants of a mountain village sorrowfully carry their old up the mountain, there to die. The old, since they followed that path in earlier days themselves, go without protest, and in fact insist on being taken, for the good of the village.

Princeton has plenty of food, of course — so much so that buying it becomes a supermarket experience — but, it seems, no land. So we carry, and are carried, across the Pennsylvania border and across U.S. 1 to meet our end, out of sight and out of touch.

When the availability of Tusculum seemed to offer a solution to this, our leaders were sufficiently startled to rule it out with a bit of zoning improvisation designed to protect the ancestral groves. Princeton must stay forever young and green, as pictured in I.Q. An alternative plan to preserve the ancestral groves by a land exchange proved equally unacceptable, as it had never been done before.

We sem likely to continue to carry, and be carried, out of town until we qualify for smaller plots in Princeton again. By then, alas, Tusculum will have probably fallen into decay, its groves a memory for local historians.

Princeton Residents' Traffic Safety Committee

We, the undersigned residents of Princeton Borough and Township, are deeply concerned about the unacceptably high levels of traffic along Route 206, and we call upon the State of New Jersey to pursue both immediate and long-term strategies to reduce the dangers and burdens that traffic imposes.

The daily volume of vehicles, including heavy interstate tractor trailer trucks, has increased dramatically in recent years. Much of this traffic is just passing through town, but it does so by snaking across the center of historic Princeton and across residential neighborhoods. With the increase in vehicles have come higher levels of congestion, more accidents, more noise pollution, more air pollution, more danger to pedestrians (especially the elderly and the young), and more danger to local drivers who find themselves dodging speeding 18-wheelers as they turn into a driveway or leave a store.

We ask the State of New Jersey to take the following actions to moderate the problem:

• Lower the speed limit to 25 miles per hour between Cherry Valley Road on the north and Province Line Road on the south;

• Place restrictions on the number of axles and size of loads permitted for interstate trucks using Route 206 through Princeton Township and Borough;

• Encourage Princeton police to institute a rigorous, 24-hour policy of stopping and ticketing all speeders, including those driving heavy trucks.

And, finally, to help solve the problem:

• Authorize, fund, and build the bypass Princeton has been promised since the 1930s; especially a north-south route to bypass Princeton. Most other New Jersey towns of Princeton's size and prominence have already seen through traffic diverted around their downtown districts. Princeton residents ask and deserve no less for the safety and the health of their community.

of certified school employees cannot be decreased.

Moreover, it is illegal to fire personnel for the purpose of hiring people covering the same function at a lower price. Finally, when retirements occur, by law districts need to hire people with the appropriate certifications; the prevailing wage of such people tends to be very high.

All the Board can do is to hire at the lowest range of the salary guide (which is very high anyway), and hold the line during the next contract negotiations. It is worth while to point out that none of our recent administrative hires make significantly more than in their previous district.

The other option is the one that our new superintendent, Dr. Bossart, has suggested: the merging of administrative functions. To be feasible, however, this solution requires some serious thinking in terms of reorganization and technology investment.

Dr. Bossart has said that she certainly expects to be able to make recommendations by next budget time. We all are aware of the chaos that Valley Road has gone through in past years. Let us give Dr. Bossart, who has been on the job for a few months only, the time to work out intelligent solutions.

The opinions expressed in this letter are my own and do not necessarily reflect those of the whole Board of Education.

Board Should Downsize School Administration

To the Editor, Town Topics:

Monday night, February 27, the Administration of the Princeton Regional Schools, after consulting with individual School Board members, introduced its initial budget proposal for 1995-96 with a shocking announcement of widespread cuts in popular programs and key personnel who touch our children's educational experience.

They got it wrong from the start. The stated priorities were "fiscal responsibility and maintaining excellence." Sounds fine to me.

But like a beginning algebra student overly eager to solve a problem and move on, they forgot to check their answers. Everyone wants excellence and fiscal responsibility, but we also want accountability for administration costs.

The Board majority stands ready to support a budget that makes far-reaching cuts in programs and teaching personnel, while actually increasing spending for the bureaucracy at Valley Road. To me this indicates a Board that is out of touch with the community.

As a School Board candidate, I join a broad chorus of concerned voices raised against these proposed cuts. We speak with many voices but our message is the same:

Cut Ass't Superintendent

The Board must preserve educational and co-curricular programs that directly impact our children. The Board should understand that cuts must be made first in the growing Valley Road central administration budget.

The Board can begin this process by cutting the position of the new Assistant Superintendent. I continue to want supervision and accountability for teaching quality, but we can do it without this position.

The Board should plan to downsize and decentralize the Valley Road administration regardless of whether or not the State acted improperly in its recent penalty actions against the District, and regardless of what other districts are doing.

This has been a pressing issue in every recent School Board election — including the last one I ran in three years ago and certainly well before there was a Gov. Whitman to take aim at Princeton.

We must plan for change over the long run. We cannot afford to simply react in crisis mode when we do the budget every year.

The School Board must direct the Administration to study options for reorganizing for a future that assumes declining state aid as a fact of life.

Finally, we must do better at soliciting input from the community, teachers, and site administrators before an initial budget is proposed. This will promote better understanding of the budget needs and provide a vehicle for gathering ideas to increase efficiency and support our children's programs better.

Post Office Is Seeking Members for Council

To the Editor, Town Topics:

The Princeton Post Office established the first Customer Advisory Council for Princeton area residents in February, 1992. Members of the Council participate in a community-based partnership with the local post office to identify and resolve service problems and assist in providing postal managers with recommendations and ideas to improve your Postal Service.

If you are interested in participating, please submit your name, address, telephone number, age group and occupation to Postmaster Victor M. Zuczek, 213 Carnegie Center, Princeton, N.J. 08540-9998. You may call 452-9044 should you have any questions regarding council activities.

Members will be selected to represent a crosssection of the local population. Ten members and two alternates will be asked to serve on year appointments. Please indicate the best day and time you would be available for Council meetings.

Deadline for letter of interest is April 11, 1995.

VICTOR M. ZUCZEK

Princeton

The only way to avoid the kinds of clashes we have seen at recent board meetings is to seek early consensus on where we want our schools to go, and how we want to pay for it.

Meanwhile, I call on School Board members to listen to the community and send the Administration back to the drawing boards on this budget.

We need creative thinking and a willingness to explore new cost-cutting approaches and we need leadership on the Board to cut administrative costs and plan for the future.

Child Study Teams Hurt By Proposed Budget Cuts

To the Editor, Town Topics:

A number of Princeton Board of Education members have raised the possibility of bringing in Pupil Assistance Committees or regular education pre-referral teams (PACS) as a magical solution to the Child Study Team cuts.

What they do not realize is: 1) the cost of implementing this model and 2) the inefficiency and ineffectiveness of this model.

I am somewhat embarrassed to admit that almost ten years ago, in a Pennsylvania district where I was responsible for the special education department, I introduced a similar model. Then in 1990, the state mandated implementation of a model similar to the one I had introduced. The state's model was to be phased in to all districts over a five-year period.

But, those of us who had been using these teams already knew that the model had not worked, despite the fact that staff in the district had wanted it to be successful and had worked hard to ensure its success. Ironically, since that time the state has withdrawn most of its financial suport for these programs.

The model employed (similar to the New Jersey PACs) called for a team which consisted of an instructional support teacher assigned to the team full time with no instructional responsibilities; at least one Child Study Team member; referring teacher; and other appropriate staff, e.g. principal, guidance counselor, etc.

The mandate of the team was to explore non-special education interventions. The range of options explored was clearly limited because of the unavailability of all Child Study Team resources. Each member of a Child Study Team has extensive training and experience which are different from those of teachers. The members are not interchangeable; one member cannot replace the expertise of another.

It turned out that most referrals made to this regular education team (called 1ST's in Pennsylvania) subsequently became referrals to the Child Study Team. Therefore, the process did not reduce Child Study Team involvement but rather delayed effective intervention.

This is an inherently inefficient model for Princeton and is not cost saving. It actually adds another layer of bureaucracy in the process of providing services to students, and it reduces overall efficiency. This model exhanges one staff member for another and represents no reduction in the number of people involved.

Princeton has been using its own model of pre-referral intervention for years based on state mandate. In our model, the Child Study Team meets weekly to discuss students about whom the teachers have concerns and for whom the teachers are seeking consultative services.

The Child Study Team members attend this meeting along with all the relevant teachers who currently work with the particular student. Thus, all the people involved know this student well.

The outcome of such meetings is a plan for non-special education interventions; there is no need for Child Study Team paperwork prior to evaluation. The Child Study Team is actively involved in the implementation and monitoring of these interventions.

This method has prevented many students from needing special education services. In those cases where the child is later referred for an evaluation, the subsequent evaluation is more focused and recommendations are more effective because of the personnel.

As most of you know, the CST serves all the children in the Princeton Regional Schools whether they have special needs or not. The proposed budget severely compromises these services.

All Child Study Team members are available to answer any further questions. We invite you to talk to us.

Our "Picture Perfect" Lawns Carry High Price in Environmental Costs

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The widespread, routine use of pesticides, herbicides and chemical fertilizers for lawns can be harmful to children, pets, birds, as well as to organisms and insects which benefit the soil. In addition, these toxics ultimately find their way into water supplies and the food chain.

A recent study published in the American Journal of Public Health noted that "children whose yards were treated with herbicides and insecticides had four times the risk of developing certain cancers" (New York Times, 2/27/95).

Fortunately there are alternatives. The Whole Earth Center of Princeton and the New Jersey Environmental Federation have been leaders in educating people about those alternatives. Informational literature on this subject can be obtained from the Center at 360 Nassau Street and at the Federation by calling them in New Brunswick at (908) 846-4224. There are also some alternative lawn care companies who use organic methods.

We should ask ourselves whether the price of a "picture perfect" lawn is worth the health and environmental costs, especially when there are viable alternatives.

tion rather than education.

Every audience member who spoke out at the meetings questioned the wisdom of the budget choices presented and their impacts on students. In the face of these protests, most board members seemed more interested in defending the proposed budget than in treating it as what it is: a proposal to be discussed and modified.

Even though nobody from the audience advocated that the budget should exceed the state cap, some board members continue to assert that they resisted pressure to go over cap.

It is important that the budget be driven hy clearly stated goals and priorities. The community needs to see the alternatives available, the choices made and the impacts of those choices in order to ensure that the educational benefits to our children are maximized.

So far, we have not been provided with any substantive justification for the damaging cuts in staff that directly affect our children. The administration has offered no sense of alternatives and no rationale for choosing between alternatives.

Indeed the budget process that is seen by the Princeton public is a one-month scramble with little time for reflection on the priorities and choices involved. There have been numerous calls for a budget process that starts earlier and is more inclusive of puhlic and staff input.

I strongly agree. We need a far more reasoned approach than what we have now.

Nothing can be done about the timing of the process for this year, but public and staff input must be included in reworking the current budget decisions. The community has demanded alternatives and the board has halfheartedly directed the superintendent to reexamine portions of the budget in light of the public comments.

As a board member I will welcome input from the community with openness and respect, for ultimately it is the voters who ratify or reject budget decisions.

A Collaborative Effort Went into School Budget

To the Editor, Town Topics:

I listened with interest to public comments at the two most recent School Board meetings. Especially moving were the heartfelt statements made by PHS students in support of individual teachers whose positions are threatened. A wrestling coach and biology teacher, in particular, were recognized for their outstanding commitment.

I heard the student voices and I support them. More than anything, I believe that quality in education depends upon student respect for their teachers. Our system cannot afford to lose leaders who develop leaders.

I also was impressed hy the tone of the puhlic's remarks. There is a message in the frustration that was expressed

---

At the same time, allowing emotional issues to drive discussion impedes our ahility to communicate and agree on a budget

Princeton recently has been penalized by the State for having high "non-instructional costs" and it seemed that this exacerbated public anger about the cuts in instructional positions.

For the record, only a small part of the penalty can be blamed on Valley Road administrative costs. In fact, our general administration costs are lower than the State average for districts our size and account for only 6 percent of the penalty that has been levied. Student support services, which I value, account for 32 percent of the penalty pie.

Three important issues that were not adequately addressed at the meeting must also be seriously considered. First is that we must try to live within the hudget cap. We cannot assume that the voters or the Whitman Administration will support a cap waiver.

Second, if we fail to gain voter support for a budget, our municipal government will be required to make cuts for us. Third is that delivery of existing school services will cost more next year, due to pre-existing contractual agreements. This means that school taxes will go up even if we do not request a cap waiver. The Board, therefore, had a clear incentive to deliver a below-cap hudget and directed the Superintendent to do so.

I was present when the Finance Committee voted to recommend that $750,000 be spent on critical maintenance needs. This decision, which I concur with, had an impact on an already strained budget. A State penalty looms; leaky roofs and boilers must be fixed; costs to deliver existing services are rising.

The Superintendent, the school principals, and the support staff collahorated to develop a hudget they considered appropriate to our District's circumstances.

This is the budget that stirred such controversy in our community. It is significant that the public has had much to say about this budget. It also is significant that, in part because of the puhlic comments, the Board has not yet had its chance.

In addressing the issues raised by this hudget, it is important to reconize that is is a proposed budget. Modifications may be warranted after comments are made by the puhlic and the Board members.

I support this hudget as a good faith effort by our district staff to meet difficult demands. It may result in the elimination of certain positions and the paring down of programs. I believe, however, that we must try our utmost to retain the key individuals so important to our students.

The creation of four longtime friends and area residents, Miles Dumont, Weezie Steffens, Donna Neas, and Judy Barker, the store offers a wonderful selection of photography and unusual gifts. Everything from wrought iron and French wire plant stands to ceramic mosaic picture frames to decoupage waste baskets, whimsical glassware, and distinctive leather journals and paperweights has enticed visitors to the new shop.

"A Gallery and More" is the key to Go For Baroque, and with its emphasis on rotating displays and merchandise, it does indeed capture the flavor of a gallery. A current display features the work of photographers who have exhibited in the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Modern Art, and who have won the Guggenheim award.

"Photography has been one of the choices we wanted to emphasize," explains Weezie Steffens. "We've even had professors at Princeton University send their photography classes here to see our photographs."

She adds that exhibits will change every few months, providing new interest as well as a new look. "In April, we'll bring in the work of an Impressionist in oils and water colors, and we will be one of only two galleries on the East Coast to show this work. We'll also have a second artist, who does collages and works in watercolors and some oils.

"I always wanted to bring together artists and creative people," she continues, "And we will be constantly changing. We want people to come in and find something new and be entertained."

Customers are certainly intrigued, as they admire the variety of merchandise and enjoy the appealing sense of space, which makes browsing such a pleasure.

An eye-catching mural by Sigstedt Studios features a stained glass waterfall design at ceiling level, and then flows into a painting which covers a section of the wall. Similar work by the artists can also be seen at the Tavern on the Green and Serendipity in New York.

Vividly Displayed

A selection of other stained glass, including large sun catcher-type decorative pieces, are vividly displayed to best advantage in the store's wonderful expanse of windows.

Among the store's most appealing items are the hand-painted chests, mirrors, coat racks, picture frames, and lamps from the Sticks Company.

As Miles Dumont explains, "The Sticks line features wonderful, whimsical, thoughtful and imaginative phrases all blended in with the designs. For example, their reading lamp lists all the reasons to read: 'To Be Excited, To Pass Tests, To Grow, To Think, To Look Ahead,' etc."

Folding contemporary Shaker-type chairs are an unusual wall hanging, and they can also serve as the real thing, if necessary. They are a true conversation piece, notes Ms. Dumont, adding "They have a great look, and would be terrific in a corporate lobby. People always notice them."

A table toward the back of the store never fails to attract customers. Set with two faux wine glasses, and with two metal and two rush-bottom chairs, it brings to mind an outdoor cafe in some intriguing city.

Heavenly Time

Sleek and contemporary perfume bottles, etched with heart, moon, fish, and sun designs, have been very popular, and who can resist the store's wonderful selection of clocks? "Heavenly Time" features an angel motif, "Laurel and Hardy" shows two silhouetted figures stealing away with the clock between them, and "Charlie Chaplin" dangles disarmingly as the pendulum for yet another.

Easter is on the way, and Go For Baroque is ready. A charming gift is one or more of the delicately handpainted gold-lined ceramic eggs, suitable for holding a piece of candy or a small candle. ($18.50).

Also lovely for Easter or as a hostess gift are handpainted guest towels, with Easter egg, birthday or angel design for $25.

"We are also going to have very special life-size stuffed animal Easter Rabbits, dressed in antique children's clothes," says Ms. Steffens.

Unique items abound at the store, and there is a surprise around every corner. Where else would you find sea glass potpourri? Its refreshing scent and small polished glass pieces in the blues, greens, and white of the sea and tan of the shore are reminiscent of an ocean breeze. ($40).

Beautifully packaged soap is distinguished by the unique nasturtium fragrance ($10), and there are hand-painted accent pillows in exquisitely shaded colors, with pear and asparagus design for $35.

The store also offers a selection of jewelry, some in the southwestern style, as well as specially coated metallic art enamel bracelets with dashing tiger design.

Battle Cap Jewelry

Pins, necklaces, earrings, and bracelets are available in the $30 to $300 range, and a very hot seller has been the "bottle cap" jewelry, created from old bottle caps. It is also offered in handbags.

And for that person who has everything, Go For Baroque features a collection of very special rocks. In assorted sizes, they are suitable as indoor decorations or paperweights, or as outdoor garden ornaments. With such sentiments, as "Remember," "Thrive," "Create," "Magic,", "Trust," and "Lunch," they start in the $18 range.

The four partners have been delighted with the customer response. "It's really been wonderful," says Ms. Steffens. "People are coming from all over. They see that this is a unique store, and they are all ages, including University students.

"I especially love to see the children come in," adds Ms. Neas. "We make it fun for them, and show them the special football and baseball glove sculptures."

They are also very pleased with the store's location at the corner of Nassau and Chambers Streets, says Ms. Dumont. "The thing that really made it happen was this corner. It had everything we wanted, and we love being in the center of town. All of us have a very strong commitment to the store, and we plan to be here for a long time."

Go For Baroque offers gift certificates, gift wrap, and is open Tuesday through Saturday 11 to 6, and some Sundays and Mondays.

A WAY WITH WOOL: "Spinning is absolutely marvelous relaxation. It's like being rocked in a cradle, it's such a great stress reliever!" Lee Good Hurford, owner of Glenmarle Woolworks at 4428 Main Street, Kingston, is seated at one of her special new Majacraft spinning wheels. In conjunction with upcoming Communiversity Day, the shop will offer area knitters teddy bear sweater kits at cost. Ms. Hurford will dress the bears in the knitted garments, sell them, and proceeds will benefit the knitter's favorite charity. Free knitting instruction will be offered Sunday afternoons at the shop between now and Communiversity Day.

Spinning Wheels, Yarn At Glenmarle Woolworks

Spinners, Weavers, and Knitters — take notice! Glenmarle Woolworks can supply just about everything you need in the wool department, with the possible exception of the sheep.

This cozy shop at 4428 Main Street (Route 27) in Kingston, features a large selection of yarn, spinning fleece, spinning wheels, looms, needles, and books, as well as a number of handcrafted sweaters, dolls, and stuffed animals on consignment.

"Our specialty is wool," says Lee Good Hurford, who opened the shop last November, partly in response to the dwindling number of yarn shops in the area, and partly because of a desire to have her own business.

"This is my first venture into business," she notes, "and it's very exciting. I certainly didn't expect to be so busy this quickly. I had a vision of coming in, sitting down at my spinning wheel, and knitting. Instead, I'm sitting down at my computer and checkbook!

"We have had an amazing reception already," she adds. "We have customers every day, and there has been a lot of word-of-mouth among the knitters. People are coming from Summit, from the shore, from Long Island, and Pennsylvania, and of course, locally. They say they are really glad we're here. If you enjoy knitting, there is nothing worse than being stranded without a project and without having access to materials."

Wonderful Therapy

A knitter of long-standing (she puts it this way: "I've been knitting for as long as I can remember. It's wonderful therapy, and it justifies sitting!"), Ms Hurford discovered the pleasure of spinning last May. She became so intrigued, she took classes, and then was able to obtain the dealership for the Majacraft line of handmade spinning wheels from New Zealand.

"These new spinning wheels are available in different styles, traditional and modern," she explains, "and some are also collapsible and easy to transport."

Glenmarle also rents, as well as sells, the spinning wheels, and rents looms. In addition, a variety of full fleeces and prepared fibers is on hand for spinners.

"A lot of craft people who weave and knit want to create their own yarn," notes Ms. Hurford. "They can get color and consistency. Also, there is a sense of completion. You start with a fleece, and end up with a sweater."

The selection of yarn, including hand-spun and natural-dyed, has been a big attraction for customers, and is available for crocheting and knitting.

"We carry imported as well as domestic yarn, novelty as well as traditional," she explains, "and it comes from all over. Yarn from the Green Mountain Spinnery in Vermont has been especially popular."

Many different types of yarn are available, and range in price from $3 to $52 for a skein, with a typical cost from $5 to $7.

Fleece is $2.50 to $20 per pound. Knitting needles are $7 to $10, and carved walnut crochet hooks are $3.50.

Splendid Knit Things

A variety of consignment items is also available. These include hand-done sweaters (some are Ms. Hurford's specialties), knitted dolls, the stuffed animals of Carolyn Cook, charming finger puppets, knitted and beaded necklaces, and sheepskin.

"We really have splendid knit things, including one-of-a-kind sweaters," notes Ms. Hurford. "In one case, the consignor spun the yarn, dyed it, designed the sweater, and knitted it."

One of Ms. Hurford's biggest pleasures has been the very positive reception to the series of workshops she has offered at the store. These include sessions on spinning, knitting, Australia locker hooking, miniature Oriental rugs, nnd basket weaving. There nre also special workshops for children, a particular gratification for Ms. Hurford, who wants to expand thc number in the future.

"We hope that somc of these arts are not lost," she explains. "It's important because it teaches kids that you don't get instant gratification. Today, there seems to be a 30-minute mind-set. We've lost a sense of the longer view."

Workshops are usually held each week for two and a half hours, with five or six to a class, and cost $20 per session, which includes the materials. Well-known spinner Nelda Davis teaches the spinning classes.

"Wc are a small but personalized shop," says Ms. Hurford. "As a consumer, I find that personal servicc is lacking all too often. I try to give people the kind of service I would expect, and we welcome suggestions from customers.

"If they have a problem, we'll help them with a sweater or other project. I will also special order anything, and we discount on large orders."

Glenmarle Woolworks is open Tuesday 10 to 6, Wednesday through Saturday 10 to 4, and by appointment. Workshops are held 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. For further information, call 921-3022.

Special Events Listed For "Mirandolina" Run

McCarter Theatre announces several special events in conjunction with performances of Mirandolina, an 18th-century Italian comedy, adapted and directed by Stephen Wadsworth.

Mr. Wadsworth, renowned for making 18th-century European plays and operas accessible to modern audiences, describes the play as having "one foot in Chekhov and one foot in vaudeville." The production, which runs from March 14 through April 2, features Mary Lou Rosato, John Michael Higgins, Rohin Chadwick, Wendy Kaplan, Elizabeth Van Dyke, Derek Smith, Sebastian Roche' and Laurence O'Dwyer.

Mr. Wadsworth, Ms. Rosato and Mr. Higgins will be the featured guests in a "Dialogue on Drama" on Sunday, immediately following the 2 p.m. matinee, at approximately 4:30 p.m. Moderated by McCarter's Literary Manager Janice Paran, the discussion is open to the public and free of charge. One need not attend the performance to attend.

McCarter will host another Singles Theater Party on Friday, March 24, beginning at 8. The cost is $30 ($35 for front orchestra seating), which includes the performance of Mirandolina and a post-performance party with door prizes and live entertainment. For reservations call the box office at 683-8000.

McCarter will offer a "pay-what-you-can" performance on Sunday, March 26, at 7:30. Tickets must be purchased at the box office on that day and are subject to availability.

Two audio described performances for blind and visually impaired patrons are scheduled for Friday, March 31, at 8 and Sunday, April 2 at 2. Sensory seminars are held an hour and a half prior to each described performance. For information on volunteering to describe or attending audio described performances, call Ann Marie Miller at 683-9100, extension 6156.

For further information call the McCarter Theatre box office at 683-8000.

LEGENDARY LOUIS: Music of Louis Armstrong will be featured by the Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra when it performs at McCarter Theatre on Tuesday at 8.

Louis Armstrong Music Played by Jazz Orchestra

Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra, under the direction of trumpeter Jon Faddis, will bring "The Majesty of Louis Armstrong" to McCarter Theatre on Tuesday at 8.

On the program will be the jazz masterworks of Louis Armstrong performed by Marcus Roberts on piano; Jon Faddis on trumpet; Bill Easley on tenor saxophone and clarinet; Wycliffe Gordon on trombone and tuba; Ben Wolfe on bass; and vocalist Thais Clark.

Louis Armstrong revolutionized the world of music and became the nation's most influential entertainer. Since his death in 1971, his legacy has rarely been presented in live performances, and never on a tour such as the one Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra is currently embarked on.

Tickets are $25, $26 and $28. To charge tickets by phone, call the McCarter Theatre box office at 683-8000.

Australian Penal Colony Setting for Intime Play

Theatre Intime will present Our Country's Good written by Timberlake Wertenbaker.

Starting Thursday, March 23, this award-winning play directed by Leo Kittay is set in an 18th-century Australian penal colony. The British governing officers and convicts alike struggle to come to terms with their new life in exile in the strange and barren land. The prisoners, led by one of their commanding officers, turn to theater in their search for autonomy and equality.

Mr. Kittay appeared last year as Hamlet and as Iago in Othello and this year as Oberon in the Princeton Shakespeare Company's A Midsummer Night's Dream and as Danton in the Department of Theatre and Dance's production of Danton's Death.

The 14-member ensemble cast includes Damian Long, Greg Bratman, Paul Serritella, Sulo Williams and Katherine Wilson, all of whom recently appeared in Theatre Intime's Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead.

Other veterans include John McHale, Kiersten Vanhorne, Sarah Court, Eric Brodnax and Kebba Jobarteh. New faces at Intime are Beth-Sarah Panton, Jack Ratchford, Fayvor Love and Jordan Roth.

The show will run Thursday through Saturday, March 23 to 25, at 8, Sunday, March 26, at 2, and Thursday to Saturday, March 30 to April 1 at 8 in Murray-Dodge Theatre on the Princeton University campus. Tickets are $10 for general admission, $8 for seniors, faculty and staff, and $5 for students.

For reservations call Theatre Intime at 258-4950.

Violists Have Their Afternoon in the Sun As Focus of Chamber Symphony Concert

It was a big day for violists Sunday afternoon in Richardson Auditorium. All three works presented by the Princeton Chamber Symphony featured violists in one way or another, most notably in the world premiere of Tania Leon's Para Viola y Orquesta. In his remarks to the audience, conductor Mark Laycock discussed the role of the viola throughout musical performance history, and Sunday afternoon's concert bore out the wide range of the instrument's capabilities.

Bach's Concerto No. 3 in G Major, which opened the concert, was played by the Princeton Chamber Symphony with a balanced and even sound among all sections of the strings. All the players could be heard equally, with the two violin soloists (concertmistress Anna Lim and an unnamed second violinist) moving the musical action along. The one instrument which could not be heard well was the harpsichord, which provided the continuo backdrop for the strings.

Tania Leon's Para Viola y Orquesta (For Viola and Orchestra) was the central piece of the afternoon, and featured guest solo violist Rozanna Weinberger. As the title indicates, Ms. Leon considers the viola and orchestra to be equal partners in this work, and Ms. Weinberger certainly had her task cut out for her. Scored for viola and very full orchestra, including a wide range of percussion, this work was commissioned by the Princeton Chamber Symphony as part of a consortium also including the Women's Philharmonic of San Francisco, the Queens Symphony of New York, and the Grant Park Music Festival of Chicago.

The solo viola part is Latin in flavor at times, and technically difficult almost always. Ms. Weinberger is a violist with a great deal of flair, and played with a heavy vibrato. She had full command of this work, especially in the more difficult third movement. Conductor Laycock also led his orchestra competently through the changing meters of the second movement and the difficult passages of the third movement, hut Ms. Leon's compositional style did not draw the full range of capabilities from the string and wind sections of the ensemble (despite extensive use of percussion). The string players were called upon to provide some unusual playing techniques, such as running their fingers up and down the fingerboard.

The concert closed with Tchaikovsky's Serenade for Strings in C Major. Performed by a smaller ensemble of strings than the Leon work, this piece was played with a full and rich sound, though with some unclean entrances along the way. Mr. Laycock seemed to be trying to pull more out of the orchestra than they were able to give in the first movement, but the ensemble picked up the pace throughout the last three movements. The violas had an especially nice chance to shine in the first movement.

Over the years, Mark Laycock has organized the Princeton Chamber Symphony around featuring the "unusual," whether it be a composer, particular piece, or instrumentation. Sunday afternoon's concert provided audiences with a chance to hear the usually reserved viola in a variety of pieces. The string sections of the Princeton Chamber Symphony have always been the strong points of the ensemble, and all three of these works gave the strings the opportunity to play their best.

Princeton Chamber Symphony's closing concert of the 1994-95 season is on Sunday, April 9, at 4 p.m. in Richardson Auditorium. The sole work on the program will be the Requiem of Johannes Brahms, featuring soprano Deborah Ford and Princeton Pro Musica

Jazz Pianist-Composer To Perform at Chapel

Jazz pianist-composer Dave Brubeck will appear at the Princeton University Chapel Saturday, March 25 at 8 for "An Evening with Dave Brubeck." Following works hy the Dave Brubeck Quartet, the featured piece will be Mr. Brubeck's The Gates of Justice which is scored for brass, percussion, chorus, and soloists.

At 74, Mr. Brubeck is as active and popular today as he was during the 1950s and '60s when he dazzled the college crowd with his distinctive harmonic approach and daring improvisations. Still touring and recording after more than 50 years in the business, Mr. Brubeck's newest release, Late Night Brubeck, was recorded in October, 1993, live at The Blue Note in New York City.

Dave Brubeck

The March 25 performance, which is the annual Milbank concert, will open with selections played by the Dave Brubeck Quartet featuring Mr. Brubeck on piano, Randy Jones on drums, Jack Six on string bass, and either Bobby Militello on saxophones and flute, or Bill Smith on clarinet.

After intermission, Mr. Brubeck will join forces with a t4-piece brass and percussion ensemble conducted by Russell Gloyd, the Chapel Choirs of Princeton, Yale, and Harvard, cantor Alberto Mizrahi, and baritone Kevin Deas in a performance of his The Gates of Justice. First performed in 1969 in Cincinnati, Ohio, the essential message of the work is the unity of people.

Princeton Boy Scout Troop 88 won Honor Troop at the Mercer District Klondike Derby Campout, which was held the weekend of February 24 at Resica Falls Scout Camp in the Poconos. Fifteen boys participated.

The troop also earned a perfect score of 100 points for its activities. Only two other troops of the 20 attending tied that score. Among the weekend's activities were skill stations for fire building, first aid, knot tying and orienteering. The sled race, for which the scouts built their own sled, was the highlight.

The participating scouts were Stefan Apse, Brett Bashaw, Ed Chiurco, Nat Cole, Drew Forman, Charles Hagaman, Robert Honstein, San Klevans, Michael Kopley, Michael Park, David Shifrin, Gary Sprague, Scout Townsend, Chris Wang, and T.J. Williams. Scoutmaster Ron Logory led the group, assisted by parents John Hagaman, Robert Honstein, and Wes Townsend.

Troop 88, which is sponsored by the United Methodist Church, meets on Monday nights. For information about joining, call Jim Kopley, Troop Committee Chairman, 924-2313.

Mark F. Ettin, a clinical psychologist, will speak to 55 Plus Thursday on "Group Process and Political Dynamics." The meeting will take place at the Jewish Center of Princeton, 435 Nassau Street, at 10 a.m. Dr. Ettin practices individual, couples and group psychotherapy.

He is an adjunct associate professor in the Department of Psychiatry at UMDNJ-Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, where he is involved in training, teaching and supervising psychological interns, psychiatric residents and mental health center staff.

Craig Speigel, of US Wats, has been appointed founding director of the new Princeton chapter of Leads Club. Patricia Marsheck, of Prudential Insurance, will be assistant director, and Kelly Trendl, of Wright Travel, will be chapter recorder. The chapter's opening will be held on Thursday at The Princetonian Diner on Route 1.

The meeting is open to the public; small business owners, managers and sales people are particularly invited to attend.

Breakfast will be served (cash menu) beginning at 7 a.m. The program will run from 7:15 to 8:30.

Executive Director Jill Chrstos will speak on the success of the international organization, and how small businesses can survive the '90s on a skin-tight budget

Leads Club, founded in 1978 by Ali Lassen, now has more than 5,000 members and 350 chapters worldwide. It is both the original lead-generating organization and the largest in the world. During the weekly 75-minute meetings, members exchange leads they have gathered during the week, acting as agents for each other in the community. Club membership is $75 for registration, and $21 monthly dues.

To attend the meeting or for more information call Rod Gochez at (215) 784-9795. Reservations are required.

Mr. Constance has a B.A. in criminal justice with honors from Trenton State College and a Master in Public Administration with honors from Rider College. He is expected to be a candidate for the New Jersey Assembly.

A former Member of Parliament, Sir Richard has held prominent positions in the British government and has headed numerous business and arts councils in Britain.

Sherry and cheese will be served.

Washington Crossing Audubon Society will meet Monday at 7:30 in Stainton Hall, the Pennington School, Delaware Avenue, Pennington.

Pete Bacinski, an expert in identifying birds by their songs, will share some of his knowledge and experience, using tapes and handouts. The talk will begin at 8, following a social time.

ART

Exhibits

Paintings, drawings, mixed-media, prints, photographs and sculpture, none of which exceeds 12 inches in any direction, will be on view at the W.P.A. Gallery of the Arts Council through March 31.

The Small Works Show annually attracts hundreds of entries from all over New Jersey and from Pennsylvania and New York City. Works for the current show were selected by Michael Bzdak, curator of the Corporate Art Program at Johnson & Johnson.

In recognition of the forthcoming tercentennial of Lawrence Township to be celebrated in 1997, a special exhibit has been planned by the Lawrence Historical Society.

Pen and ink sketches by Harry Pratt will be exhibited at the Lawrence Gallery located in the Lawrence Shopping Center, Route 1 and Texas Avenue. An opening reception will be held Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m., and the show will be on display through April 15. Refreshments will be served. There is no admission charge. Frances McCarthy and Denise Hall are co-chairs and hostesses for this event.

TOPIC OF TALK: "Mildred Clarke von Kienbusch," an oil by Robert Henri, will be discussed in a gallery talk at the Princeton University Art Museum, "Robert Henri: Two Faces," on Friday at 12:30 and Sunday at 3.

Harry Pratt retired as the superintendent of schools for Lawrence Township in 1960. On retirement he enrolled in the Famous Artists' School and pursued an active career in pen and ink sketches and woodworking.

The pen and ink sketches of historic local and neighboring structures are on special loan from the private collection of his daughter, Ruth Pratt Fenner, who lives in Sioux Falls, S.D.

Harry Pratt died in July, 1984. He was an elder and trustee of the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church, a member of the Old Guard of Princeton University and a trustee of the Lawrence Historical Society.

An exhibit featuring works by Marietta Thomas Kust will open in the dining room of the Princeton Medical Center on Friday at 4 p.m. with a wine and cheese reception. The show will run until May 18. The hours for viewing are 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

Ms. Kust studied undergraduate and graduate art at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, and has taught watercolor, oil, and acrylic painting in North Carolina, Wisconsin, and New Jersey. She moved to New Jersey in 1971 and now directs an adult acrylic and watercolor workshop in Pennington.

In this exhibit, Ms. Kust has included examples of her woodcut prints, acrylic paintings, and watercolors.

Members of the Garden State Watercolor Society will exhibit their works at the Rider University Art Gallery from March 20 through April 8. The public is invited to an opening reception on Friday, March 24, from 6 to 8 p.m.

Gallery hours are Monday through Thursday, noon to 2 and 6 to 8 p.m., and Friday through Sunday, 2 to 5. Admission to the gallery, located on the second floor of the University's Lawrenceville campus Student Center, is free.

Garden State Watercolor Society is a leading organization of watercolor artists. Every year since the society was founded in 1970 by Dagmar Tribble, it has held two annual exhibitions in the Princeton area: a juried exhibition open to all New Jersey watercolorists and a full members show. There are presently 108 full members, many of whom will be exhibiting at Rider.

An exhibition of oils and pastels by Moscow artist Janna Yakovleva will be at CG Gallery, Ltd., 10 Chambers Street, through Saturday, March 18.

The artist will be present from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. through Friday and from 4 to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Refreshments will be served.

David Bush, chairman of the Fine Arts Department at The Hun School, is having a showing of his paintings at the Norbert Considine Gallery at Stuart Country Day School.

The show will run through March 31. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 8 to 6.

An exhibition of paintings by Marilyn I. Sakellaropoulo will be in the Bernstein Gallery of the Woodrow Wilson School, Princeton University, from March 20 through April 27. The artist will host a reception on Sunday, March 26 from 4 to 6:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Mrs. Sakellaropoulo began painting with acrylics shortly after her move from Europe to Princeton nine years ago. A preoccupation with color and energy is apparent in her vivid and spontaneous still-lifes, as well as with her Impressionist-like florals. She has previously exhibited in group shows, and had her first solo show last year.

The gallery is located on the lower level of the Woodrow Wilson School.

Princeton Hockey's Finest Hour: 3-2 Win over Brown Marks Farthest Advance Ever in Post-Season Playoffs

It took one swipe of Matt Brush's stick to turn Princeton coach Don Cahoon's season guide, titled The Road to Lake Placid, from fiction to non-fiction.

The Tigers' dream became reality when Brush took a Casson Masters pass that went between a Brown defenseman's legs and slipped the puck through Bears' goalie Brian Audette's pads 2:06 into the second overtime to give Princeton a 3-2 win and the best-of-three series.

SPORTS

Brush's goal ended an epic game and series with the Bears. The double overtime spectacle was the longest game ever for both teams and was marked by the two teams playing vintage defensive hockey for 43 minutes after John DiRenzo had tied the game for Brown late in the second period.

"That was a classic game," said a giddy Cahoon after the game. "That was a beauty. I guess we have to set some new goals now."

The Tigers bounced back from a disappointing 3-2 effort the night before when Brown had taken Princeton off its game with a rash of penalties. Princeton took early control of the series with a solid come-from-behind 4-3 victory Friday night.

Princeton had entered the quarterfinals with Brown, having not won a single quarterfinal game in school history and with a 1-9 record against the Bears in their last 10 meetings.

Despite the odds the Tigers played with the poise and maturity of a playoff-savvy team.

No Garbage, Thanks

If the third game had been an NHL game and not an ECAC game, the first period would have featured a toe-to-toe fight between the Princeton enforcer and a Brown enforcer. The period instead was filled with 96 minutes worth of penalties as Princeton sent a message to Brown as discreet as a stick to the ribs.

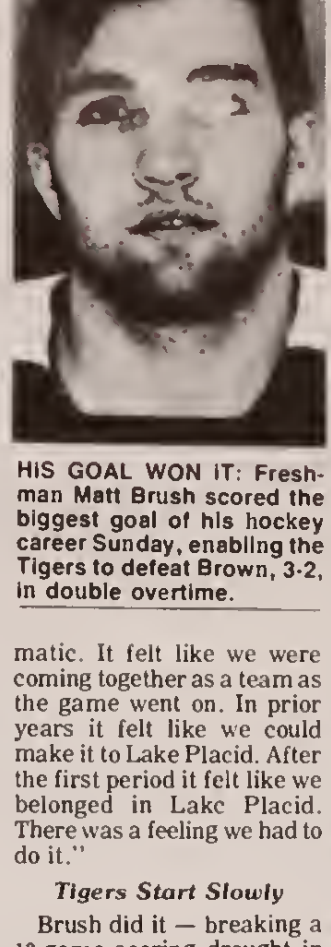

"The first period had to be that type of period," said Cahoon. "We took a lot of abuse on Saturday. We had to let them know we were not going to back down and take that garbage."

Between the penalties Ryan Mulhern and Jason Smith traded goals, the Brown tally coming with the teams skating four-on-three, and Smith's drive through Audette's pads with the teams skating four-on-four.

The garbage out of the way, the teams got down to hockey in the second period. J.P. O'Connor worked his way through the Brown defense to slip the puck past Audette, but DiRenzo tied the game with the Bears' second power-play goal with 1:41 remaining when he jammed the puck past Princeton goalie James Konte.

The experience of Konte and his defensive corps came through in the third period and the overtime. Konte, who did not allow a soft goal the entire weekend, stopped Scott Bradford on a partial breakaway in the first overtime. The Princeton defense, led by Jason Smith, kept the Brown forwards away from the net and cleared the puck out of the Princeton end with confidence.

"I had never been on the ice so much in a game," said Smith afterwards. "Right when you got off in overtime you wanted to get right back on. It almost became automatic. It felt like we were coming together as a team as the game went on. In prior years it felt like we could make it to Lake Placid. After the first period it felt like we belonged in Lake Placid. There was a feeling we had to do it."

HIS GOAL WON IT: Freshman Matt Brush scored the biggest goal of his hockey career Sunday, enabling the Tigers to defeat Brown, 3-2, in double overtime.

Tigers Start Slowly

Brush did it — breaking a 13-game scoring drought in the second overtime, ending a series that took 203 minutes of hockey and 216 minutes in penalties.

The first period of the series Friday night looked like old-time Princeton hockey as Brown scored two goals in the first 10 minutes to jump to a quick lead.

Jonathan Kelley scored the first of several soft goals on Brown during the weekend to start the second period when his slap shot slipped through Mike Parsons' pads from outside the blue line. It took Brown only 20 seconds, however, to regain their two-goal lead when Damian Prescott took advantage of a two-on-one break and sent a wrist shot past Konte.

Instead of folding at this point, as Princeton teams in the past have done in quarterfinal rounds, the Tigers picked up the intensity and the line of Kelley, Ethan Early and Mervin Kopeck took over. The kinetic energy of Early and Kopeck and Kelley's goal-scoring touch carried Princeton.

Early scored off a perfect pass from Kopeck to make the score 3-2 with five minutes left in the second period. Playing against a team that had a record of 12-0 when leading going into the third period, Princeton dominated Brown during the final 20 minutes.

Kopeck scored off a cross-crease pass from Early to tie the game four minutes into the period, before Kelley knocked in his 23rd goal of the season off a Jason Smith rebound for the game winner with 7:47 left in the third period. The line of Kopeck, Early and Kelley, which had 26 goals combined for their careers entering the year, boosted their line's season-goal total to 44 after the game.

The legs were not there for Princeton on Saturday night, but the clutching and grabbing were for Brown. The Bears took Princeton out of stride and out of synch with the 30 penalties called.

The Tigers kept it close, thanks to outstanding goaltending by Konte. At the other end, Audette, who was starting only his third game of the season in goal for Brown, let a Kelley drive go off his glove and watched Robbie Sinclair beat him with a low wrist shot to his glove side to tie the game 2-2 heading into the third period.

Princeton, however, could manage very few quality shots on Audette and Brown took the play to the Tigers during the final period. Marty Clapton finally put the Bruins ahead when he sent a low backhand past Konte midway through the third period to set up the dramatic winner-take-all contest Sunday night.

Princeton became the first ECAC team to win a preliminary game and a quarterfinal series since the league expanded its playoffs in 1990. The Tigers will face top-seed Clarkson in the semifinals at 8 p.m. Friday. Colgate meets Rensselear in the opening game on Friday.

The Green Knights are ECAC final-four veterans, having won the tournament twice in the last four years. Princeton must find a way to deal with Clarkson's big, physical defense that kept them away from the Green Knights' net at Baker, and the large ice surface at the Olympic Arena in Lake Placid.

The Tigers may once again go with Masters as a defenseman to replace the injured Dan Brown. Masters skated with Smith and fared well, moving from his forward position. Kevin Sheehan started only his third game of the season on defense Sunday night in the deciding game and also fared well, but did not see action in the overtime periods.

The Beat Goes on for Tiger Hockey; Lake Placid Next, NCAAs Possible

As the saying goes, there is good news and bad news ahead for the Princeton hockey team.

The good news is the Tigers, by defeating Brown in the quarterfinals, have reached the ECAC's Final Four for the first tima ever and will be playing in Lake Placid, N.Y. this Friday and Saturday.

The bad news is the Orange and Black has to play top-seeded Clarkson (22-8-4), in the second half of Friday's doubleheader, starting at approximately 8 p.m. Colgate and RPI square off at 5. As the seventh-seed in tha tournament, Princeton has no choice but to go against the powerful Golden Knights, thc only team this season that defeated the Tigers twice in league play, 11-2, and 6-3. Clarkson had no trouble with 10th-seeded Cornell in thè quarterfinals, winning 6-2 and 7-2. The Big Red earned the trip to Potsdam when It defeated ninth-seeded St. Lawrence, 6-2, in the preliminary round.

Now the good news; even if Old Nassau loses to Clarkson in the semis, it could still earn a trip to the NCAA tournament. Tha ECAC will send two teams to the tournament, and Clarkson, by virtue of finishing first during the regular season, Is guaranteed to go. If the Golden Knights also win the ECAC playoffs, another team would be chosen.

If Princeton were to lose to Clarkson on Friday night by a close margin, and then win the consolation game against either RPI or Colgaie on Saturday, it would stand some ehance of being selected as the second ECAC representativa by eonferenca offlcials. Thc Tigers own three victories over Colgato during the regular season, and were 1-0-1 against RPI. By the same token, if the Tigers upset Clarkson, but lost in the finals, they might well miss out on an NCAA trip. Saturday's consolation and championship games are set for 5 and 8 pm, respectively.

The NCAA regionals, encompassing 12 teams, will be held the weekend of March 24-25 at both Worcester, Mass., and Madison, Wis. Tho NCAA Final Four will be the weekend of March 30-April 1 back in Providence.

RPI (16-13-4) got its tieket to the semifinals by collecting a tie and a win against Harvard in last week's quarterfinals in Cambridge. The Engineers tied the Crimson 2-2 in the first game, and then defeated Harvard 3-1 tha next avening. When was the last time, you may wonder, that Princeton advanced further in post-season play than Harvard? Tha answer obviously is never.

Colgate (20-14-1) needed three games to dispose of Vermont. The Catamounts came into Hamilton and won the first meeting, 5-2, but the Raiders took the next two, 2-0 and 4-1.

Now, one final piece of not-so-good news. Empire Sports Network will be televising all the action from Laka Placid, both Friday and Saturday nights, but at this point it does not look like either the semis or the finals will be shown live in this area. The ECAC is eompeting with Hockey East, which is having its own Final Four Tournament at the same time, and at this point cable outlets in this area such as MSG and the New York and Philadelphia outlcts for Sportschannel, are favoring Hockey East

ECAC games, which may or may not include Princeton's, will be shown on tape delay very early Saturday and Sunday morning. Those wishing to tune in should check their cable listings for both days. Of course, if you happen to know somebody with a satellite disb in his backyard, call up, invite yourself over for dinner, and say you'll bring the pizza.

The Tigers' forward line hould be boosted with the reurn of Mike Bois, who miss-d the Brown weekend due to skin infection.

Union Finally Beaten

The 5-2 triumph over Union n the preliminary round March 7 was the first win ver the Dutchmen since 992. The Tigers were 0-2-2 he last two years, but this ime they made certain they vould not stumble against a esser opponent, after expecting not to have to play a irst round contest at all.

Faced with the thought of nding their hockey careers prematurely, three senior orwards took care of most of the scoring. Sharp and Kopec each had a goal and an assist and Early contributed hree assists. Sharp's tally ame just 1:28 into the game o give the Tigers an early 1-0 lead. Union matched that midway through the first, but Kopeck's score four minutes later gave the Orange and Black the lead for good.

Kelley, who also picked up two assists, got the only goal of the second period to lift the lead to 3-1 going into the third. There was brief nervousness among Tiger fans when Union chopped the deficit in half at 8:47, but several statistics were working in Princeton's favor. Union came into the contest 2-12-1 on the road this season, 2-12-3 when the opposition scores first and 0-11-0 when behind entering the third period.

So it seemed logical less than two minutes later, when J.P. O'Connor returned the two-goal cushion, scoring after some nice work by Jason Smith to keep the puck in the zone. Robbie Sinclair's rising slap shot at 15:52 put a nice cap on the evening's work.

Princeton's defense allowed Union just 21 shots (the Tigers had 28), and Konte stopped all but two. It also killed off five power play chances by the visitors, but the Tigers came up empty on three opportunities.

Tiger Lacrosse Now 0-2 After Loss to Virginia

Well, guess what, the Princeton lacrosse team does miss Kevin Lowe after all.

You had to wonder after the Tigers scored 14 goals in the opening loss to Johns Hopkins whether they could just pick up offensively where they left off last May without the school's all-time leading point man. But after a second straight defeat, this time to Virginia, 11-4, in Palmer Stadium last Saturday, Lowe's absence was obvious to everyone.

"We need a feeder, someone who can dodge and make something happen," Coach Bill Tierney said after watching his team score the fewest number of goals since a 10-3 whipping by Hofstra to close out the 1989 season, Tierney's second here and his last losing one. "Kevin could create things, and today we didn't have anyone to make things happen. Either we find someone in a hurry or we change our style," Tierney said.

Saturday's style amounted to the Tigers passing the ball around the UVA net waiting for someone to take the initiative. Too often an errant pass ended the scoring chance before Princeton could even get a decent shot off. Perhaps most indicative of the Orange and Black's problems; it had five man-up situations and often failed to get off a decent shot. The shot totals favored Virginia, 49 to 40, but many of those Tiger shots never reached the net. More importantly, the Cavaliers enjoyed a 15-4 edge in face-offs.

After two games against top four teams (and the first time also since '89 Old Nassau has lost two in a row), Tierney's troops should get a break against Notre Dame in a game scheduled to be played this past Tuesday at the Gilman School in Baltimore.

The Irish are not the caliber of most teams in the East. But then it's back to the top 10 on Saturday when the Orange and Black will face off against North Carolina at Norfolk, Va. The Tigers whipped the Tarheels, rated anywhere from fifth to ninth in pre-season polls, 16-9 a year ago.

it was a different story this time around. The Orange and Black was clearly outplayed by the Cavaliers, who scored the opening goal five and a half minutes into the contest and never looked back. They got another a few minutes later, before Jason Buttles gave most of the fans in the crowd of 2,700 something to cheer about. He tallied from close range on a nice feed from Todd Eichelberger.

But that was as close as Princeton would get. The visitors tallied once more in the first and added three more in the second for a 6-1 halftime lead. The final two came in the final 22 seconds, just eight seconds apart, and as much as anything told the story of this afternoon. The first came after several changes of possessions in the Princeton end, with the Cavaliers finally stuffing the ball in the net. Then, they won the ensuing face-off, raced down the field and scored again.

Old Nassau got a quick boost in the third when sophomore midfielder Ben Strutt scored with only 22 seconds gone, but that proved to be the Tigers' only goal. Virginia matched that, scoring with less than a minute left in the quarter.

Freshman attacker Chris Massey tallied on a nice effort to open the fourth, and Bart Bansbach, assisted by Don McDonough, closed out the scoring in the game, but sandwiched between those two were four more by the winners. Greg Traynor and Doug Knight led the scoring with four apiece.

Tierney had praise for his goalie Pat Cairns, who is trying to fill last season's Player of the Year Scott Bacigalupo's shoes. The sophomore netminder made several tough saves among the 16 credited to him.

"If you had told me we could hold Virgina to 11 goals, I'd have thought we'd have a pretty good chance of winning," Tierney commented. "I can't remember the last time we were that unaggressive on offense. Give Virginia credit, they have good athletes and played great defense, but we were awful."

US Elite Team Beats Women's Lacrosse, 13-6

The Princeton women's lacrosse team got a wake-up call last Saturday, and fortunately for coach Chris Sailer's NCAA defending champions it didn't cost them anything, except maybe a little pride. The exhibition game will not count in the regular season standings.

The US Elite team, made up of former collegiate starts, routed the Tigers, 13-6, in Palmer Stadium. The two teams had met just the weekend before in a round-robin format in Virginia and Princeton had lost just 3-2. It was virtually no contest this time; the Elitists led 5-0 before the Orange and Black got its first tally. Amy Rowe got it off a free position, and she added four more, but no one else did much of anything.

The Elite Team led 7-2 at the half and added six more goals after the intermission. Cassey Coleman and Melissa Cully scored second half goals for Princeton.

"I guess we need to regroup and see if we can come out and play for 60 minutes," said Sailer, who was happy with the play of some players like freshmen Cully and Cristi Samaras, and sophomore Lexa Castiello. But last year's top scorers like Lisa Rebane, Liz Fagan and Abigail Gutstein did not muster a point between them.

The level of competition won't drop that much this week, when things begin in earnest. This past Tuesday, Old Nassau was scheduled to open at James Madison, and then face Virginia at Charlottesville. The Cavaliers made it to the semifinals of the NCAA championships last May, before losing to Princeton in overtime, 14-13.

Penn Sweeps Ivy Again, Beating Princeton 69-57

For a little while on Wednesday night, it looked as though Princeton might manage to spoil the Penn Quakers' chance to post an unprecedented third consecutive undefeated Ivy League season.

It was a soate of second half turnovers — "the story of our life this year," as coach Pete Carril put it — that snuffed the Tigers' hopes and capped the Quakers' third year of outright domination in League play.

After playing to a 28-28 first half tie against the NCAA Tournament-bound Quakers, Princeton fell into a 42-32 hole. The Tigers threatened in the final 15 minutes, but were unable to sustain a rally long enough to catch the Quakers.

Good First Half

The Tigers had maintained the lead through most of the first half, although the teams were never more than five points apart. Penn pulled ahead 24-23 on a Shawn Trice layup with 5:19 remaining, but could not sustain their momentum.

Playing in his last game in a Tiger uniform, senior Rick Hielscher drained a free throw to tie the game at 24. The teams remained deadlocked for nearly three minutes, but Trice and Ira Bowan each scored layups for the Quakers to put them on top, 28-26.

In the final minute of the half, freshman forward James Mastaglio nailed a pair of free throws and a layup to pull the Tigers back to 28-28.

By committing turnovers on four consecutive possessions, Princeton opened the door to coach Fran Dunphy's squad. Penn did not waste the opportunity: they took all four turnovers to the bank, and stayed in control for the rest of the evening.

After Penn expanded the lead to 12 points, the Tigers rattled off nine straight to close to 49-46. Penn called a time out, which turned into a rather long break when one of the Quaker cheerleaders was dropped during a routine and hit her head on the floor.

She survived with little apparent damage, but the Tiger rally did not. Penn stormed back with five quick points, and the Tigers didn't threaten again.

Brighter Future

Speaking at the post-game press conference, coach Carril said that during the game, he had begun to see some promising signs for the future, assuming that his players are willing to put in some hard work in the off-season.

"They all know what they have to do — I think the future of basketball here is a little brighter."

While Carril was explicitly referring to his team's ability to give a tough game to a talent-heavy Penn squad, implicit in his remarks was his pleasure with the play of his freshman starters.

The first half play of Mastaglio helped keep the Tigers in the game. The young forward scored 11 of his 15 points in the first 20 minutes, including the four in the final minute that preserved the tie.

Point guard Mitch Henderson was the sparkplug in the second half, when he scored 13 of his team-high 21.

In the last few games, Henderson has shown that he has as explosive a first step as any guard in the league. He knows how to shed his man on the way around a screen, and has no fear of moving to the basket through a crowded lane.

Perhaps because Penn did not really expect a Pete Carril point guard to drive to the basket from outside the three-point arc, it took the Quakers some time to collapse on the driving Henderson; but eventually, they began to close down the lane.

Freshman Steve Goodrich ended the game with six points. More important though, the man he guarded for much of the evening had zero.

Penn's center, Eric Moore, who is usually good for 11 points per contest, was rendered ineffective on the offensive side of the court. Moore took only two shots, and grabbed one rebound. Credit goes to Goodrich and Hielscher, who dominated the middle, with 11 rebounds and two blocks between them.

Sophomore captain Sydney Johnson, who drew the unenviable task of guarding Penn guard Jerome Allen, allowed his man 16 points while scoring 11 himself.

Junior Chris Doyal was disappointing on the offensive side of things, getting shut out on 0-for-two field goal shooting. He tied Hielscher for the team-high in rebounds, though, grabbing six.

Princeton actually outrebounded the bigger Quakers, 28-23.

Goodbye to "33"

The Penn game was the last for Hielscher, who leaves the Tiger basketball program with his name firmly planted in the record books.

The Wilmette, Ill. native ends his Princeton career with the school record for blocked shots at 159. He is tenth on the all-time scoring list, with 1,128; eighth on the all-time assists list, with 209; and 16th on the all-time rebounding list, with 481.

Hé suffered through painful tendinitis in his knees, which severely limited his playing time as a sophomore and cropped up again to rob him of a starting slot as a senior.

"It's been an up-and-down road," he said after the game. Would he do it again? The answer was an unequivocal affirmative.

"I love the guys on this team, and we'll always be close. I can see great things here in the future."

In spite of his multiple accomplishments in a Tiger uniform, Hielscher did not have his best outing against Penn. Carril wound up benching his senior captain for the final five minutes of the contest, a move that was not appreciated by many fans who had come to see Hielscher's final game.

The Tigers also say goodbye to seniors Michael Weiss and Brian Leftwich. Neither saw significant playing time this season, and sadly, neither was allowed to make even a token appearance on the court for their final game.

Carril's allocation of playing time may provoke anger on the part of some Tiger fans, but it shouldn't provoke surprise. Carril has always made it clear that when it comes to a decision between winning games and winning friends, he'll take games every time.

THE LAST HURRAH: Princeton's four-year varsity stand-out Rick Hielscher played his last game as a Tiger a week ago Wednesday in a loss to Penn. He ends his career with a second consecutive nomination to the All-Ivy League first team, and his name firmly ensconced in the Princeton record books.

Three Tigers All-Ivy

Hielscher received a final honor last Thursday, when it was announced that he had been named to the All-Ivy League first team for the second consecutive time. Penn's Allen and Maloney, Dartmouth's Sea Lonergan, and Brown's Eric Blackiston rounded out the first-team selections.

Johnson and Doyal were both given All-Ivy honorable mentions.

In other Ivy notes, Penn's three consecutive undefeated seasons is a league record. Since the eight teams that now comprise the Ivy League started playing each other early in the century, none has matched it, although one came close.

From 1970 to 1976, the Quakers ruled the Ivy hardwood, taking seven consecutive titles. They were undefeated in the ancient eight in 1970 and 1971. In 1972, they were 13-1. Their only loss? A 69-56 setback in Jadwin Gym.

The Quakers received a No. 12 seed in the NCAA Tournament's Eastern Division. They will play the No. 5 seed Alabama in the Meadowlands this weekend.

Four teams out of Philadelphia's unofficial Big Five made the field of 64. Temple was relegated to the Western Division, but the other three are in the east. If Penn beats Alabama, and Drexel upsets Oklahoma, they will see each other in the second round. With a No. 3 seed in the same Division, Villanova and Penn could not face each other until the quarterfinals.

Columbia basketball coach Jack Rohan, who has coached the Lions for a total of 18 seasons, resigned his job after the Lions' last game this year.

The Lions were 4-20 this year, and 1-11 in the League.

With Just 3 Seniors Lost to Graduation, Tiger Nine Hoping to Make Strong Run for Gehrig Division Title

The Princeton University baseball team opened the season last week with their annual trip to Florida, a grueling affair that packs 12 games into eight days.

In his 14th year as head coach, Tom O'Connell took four seniors, 10 juniors, nine sophomores, and a handful of freshman south with him, hoping to mold a young, but experienced group of players into a team that will contend for the Gehrig Division championship this season.

Princeton finished 21-19 overall last season and posted a 10-10 Ivy League record. They graduated only three seniors from last year's squad: Matt Golden, Tim Taylor, and Chris Samway. Returning is the guts of a solid pitching staff, a handful of sharp infielders, and a strong but intermittent offense.

Big issues to be resolved during the Florida trip include the status of the outfield, the shape of the starting rotation, and the selection of starters at shortstop and second base.

On the Mound

Golden was the only starting pitcher that the Tigers lost to graduation. Although he was picked up by the St. Louis Cardinals' farm system, he was no lucky charm for Princeton, finishing the year 2-5 with a .501 ERA.

Among the returnees is senior captain Dave Kahney. A strong right-hander with a good curve and excellent control, Kahney led the team in strikeouts last season.

He will begin the year in the starting rotation, but if some of the younger pitchers come along in the early season, he will probably move to the bullpen, where he is most effective.

Other returnees include a pair of righties: Chris Yarbrough, a junior, who ended last year 5-1 with a 4.02 ERA, and sophomore Brian Volpp (4-1, 4.86 ERA).

Back from a year off is junior Koleman Karleski, a big left hander who could easily break into a starter's job. He made six appearances two years ago, and at 6'2, 205 pounds, he can put considerable power behind the ball.

Junior Jon Edgar and sophomore Kevin McLaughlin saw limited varsity action last year, but could work their way into the rotation.

Lefty Jade Landfried, who performed well in 13 relief appearances as a freshman, will bring some valuable experience to the bullpen. Senior Chris Looney, also a left hander, will join Landfried in the 'pen.

Right-handed sophomore Keith Negrin made seven brief appearances last year and will help out in the late innings.

Behind the plate for most of Princeton's games will be junior captain Mike Ciminiello. With six errors and only one passed ball last season, Ciminiello was good for a .972 fielding percentage. He has caught for all the pitchers on the staff, and can call a good game.

Sharing time behind the plate will be Ciminiello's fellow junior Peter Silletti, also a good defensive player who knows his pitchers.

In the Infield

Princeton's infield will be strong on the corners and questionable up the middle, as the season commences.

Senior Zack Perry, a fixture at first base for the last two seasons, will bring his .983 fielding percentage back to the field this season.

Across the diamond, Tommy Hage will be manning the hot corner. He steps into the large shoes of Tim Taylor, who held down that bag for most of last season.

Shortstop is currently in question, as last year's starter, sophomore Joe Quinn, battles freshman Justin Griffin for the job.

At second base, O'Connell will have to decide between Dave Ekelund, Gino Barbera, and Michael Keck.

Ekelund saw most of the starts last year, but in his 26 appearances, Barbera made no errors. Ekelund, no slouch in the fielding department, had a .976 fielding percentage. Keck, also a potential third baseman, will have his chance to claim the position in the early season.

Out in the Field

Kahney will be found in right field when he is not on the mound, but that is about the only thing about the Tiger outfield that is written in stone.

In center, possibilities are junior Todd Kata and sophomore Tyler Bronson. If senior Eric Smallwood can improve his hitting, he may retain a spot in left field, however, his .182 average last year guarantees a chance to other candidates, like junior Jason Brice.

At the Plate

The Tigers produced an average of 6.04 runs per game last year, but their offense was sporadic. They scored more than 10 runs on 10 different occasions, but were held to two or fewer runs seven times.

Princeton lost nine games by one run last year, and in all but one of those, the opposing team scored five runs or less.

As a team, Princeton hit .304 last year, and most of their consistent sluggers will be returning.

Kahney was the best hatter of all last year, hitting .346 with a .436 slugging percentage.

Hage, with his .331 average and .490 on-base percentage will also appear near the top of the lineup. Last year he led the team in extra base hits and knocked four home runs. He was also tops in RBIs, with 34.

Perry hit .322 last year, with 25 RBIs, and Ciminiello was close behind at .320 and 31 RBIs.

Kata and Ekelund were both .318 hitters last year, and Ekelund matched Hage with a .490 on-base percentage.

1-2 in Florida

The team opened its Florida trip with an 11-8 victory over Villanova, but fell in successive contests to Detroit Mercy and Lewis College.

Kahney got the start against Villanova, and went seven innings, giving up seven runs on nine hits. Negrin, in relief, pitched two innings of one-hit ball, giving up one run.

Hage was the star at the plate, going four-for-six with a double, a home run, two runs scored and five RBIs. Bronson was three-for-four with a double and a home run, three runs scored, and two RBIs.

Brian Volpp went seven innings against Detroit Mercy, allowing five runs on nine hits and six walks. One run was earned. Looney pitched two innings of hitless relief, but was followed by Bryan Stroh and Ben Matsil, who allowed a three-run ninth inning.

Zack Perry was the lone offensive bright spot, going three-for-four with a double and a run scored. The Tigers were out of this one early, losing 8-2.

In an 11-10 loss to Lewis, a one-run error in the ninth was the Tigers' undoing. Karleski had the start, and pitched eight innings. He allowed 10 runs on seven hits and six walks; only four runs were earned.

Princeton committed five fielding errors, including a dropped line drive in the top of the ninth that allowed the winning run to cross.

Looney was touched for one run on two hits in the ninth before being replaced by Negrin, who finished things.

Tommy Hage continued to tear it up offensively, going four-fur-five with a double, three runs scored, and two RBIs. Perry was two-for-three with a run and three RBIs. Ciminiello was two-for-four, and Quinn was two-for-five.

Horton Cup to Kingston In 6-5 Battle with Beacon

The Kingston Hockey Club stopped rival Beacon Hill 6-5 in the final of the Horton Cup Tournament to take the win and the cup at Iceland last week.

Kingston got through the three teams in its division with a 2-0-1 mark, chalking up wins over Princeton (3-1) and Wissahickon (4-3) and tying Chester County 2-2.

Meeting Beacon Hill in the final was a chance for revenge in the eyes of the Kingston players, who had lost the Commuter League Southern Division title to their northern rivals this year.

"We wanted these guys bad," said Kingston general manager Bob Smyth.

Beacon Hilll came to the game with an identical 2-0-1 tournament record, but didn't look sharp in the early going, as Kingston took a quick lead.

Twenty seconds after goalie Dan Fortunato stopped a Beacon Hill breakaway at 13:50, John Cook tallied for Kingston on an assist from John Quinn. Two minutes later, Dave Riviere scored the first of his three goals on an assist from Dave Ellison.

The Kingston onslaught continued, as Jim Rodgers, assisted by Arch Reid, scored at 9:33. The teams were silent until the 3:00 mark, when Fortunato stopped another breakaway. Seconds later, Riviere scored on an assist from captain Buzz Woodworth.

In the second period, Beacon Hill found its feet and delivered a goal at the 11:38 mark. Riviere retaliated at 10:00 with his third, assisted by Colie Donaldson. Cook scored his second at 6:10, on another Donaldson assist, putting Kingston up 6-1.

With :19 seconds remaining in the second period, Beacon Hill tallied again, pulling to 6-2.

In the third, Beacon came roaring back. They scored at 13:44, and then, with one second remaining in a Kingston five-minute major penalty, they scored again, closing to 6-4.

Kingston held Beacon off in spite of numerous penalty minutes, until 3:38 when they closed to within a single goal.

Kingston's fans had their hearts in their collective throat at 1:43, when their team was penalized again, but the squad managed to kill the penalty to end the game with a win.

The exhausted Kingston team then trooped into the locker room, filled the Horton Cup with beer, as tradition requires, and celebrated their win.

Today's column discusses "You and Your Home," including tenants' rights and responsibilities, fire prevention, trash and recycling, parking and suggestions for living harmoniously with your neighbors.

USTED Y SU CASA

Sus derechos y sus responsabilidades como inquilino: En el estado de New Jersey los alquileres están regulados por la Ley de Viviendas de New Jersey (New Jersey State Housing Code) y por las leyes municipales del Borough y del Township de Princeton.

Entre las principales regulaciones está la obligación del dueño de mantener la vivienda alquilada en buenas condiciones físicas y de seguridad, de obedecer las leyes de vivienda y las leyes sanitarias, incluyendo que la vivienda tenga: agua potable, agua caliente y fría en la cocina y en los baños; instalaciones adecuadas y seguras de plomería y electricidad; equipo de calefacción debidamente instalado (con un mínimo de temperatura de 65 a 68 grados); ventilación y luz adecuadas, detectores de humo (alarmas contra incendio). En caso de mal funcionamiento, el inquilino debe llamar al dueño.

Además, el dueño debe alquilar la vivienda limpia — sin basura, sustancias peligrosas, roedores o insectos. Después, Ud. tiene que mantenerla así.

Si el dueño no cumple con estas leyes, Ud. debe reportarlo al Inspector de Viviendas (teléfono: 497-7646).

Todas las viviendas deben ser inspeccionadas periódicamente por el Inspector de Viviendas. La ley requiere un mínimo de espacio por cada residente; falta de cumplir con esta ley puede ser causa de evicción (expulsión de la vivienda), lo cual consiste de un proceso legal.

Para los aumentos de alquiler el dueño debe enviar una notificación al inquilino con 60 días de anticipado (en el Borough) y 30 días (en el Township).

Para mayor información, consulte en la Biblioteca Pública de Princeton el folleto, en español, Los Derechos de los Inquilinos en New Jersey publicado por el Latin-American Task Force de Princeton. Si Ud. tiene conflictos con el dueño de su vivienda, en el Borough llame a la Oficina de Vivienda Alquilada (Rental Housing Board): 497-7646 y en el Township llame la Comisión de Salud (Board of Health), 497-7614.

Prevención contra incendios: Los incendios son la principal causa de muerte en los hogares. Para evitar incendios domésticos, Ud. debe cumplir con las siguientes recomendaciones y leyes:

- Asegúrese de que todas las alarmas contra incendio (smoke detectors) estén funcionando. Revise las baterías dos veces al año.
- Nunca quite las baterías a las alarmas contra incendio. La alarma puede ofrecer la oportunidad de escapar.

El inquilino es responsable por el mantenimiento de las alarmas contra el incendio.

- Cada piso de la casa debe tener una alarma.
- Mantenga un extinguidor de fuego (fire extinguisher) en la cocina.
- No use cables de extensión eléctricos para los aparatos eléctricos grandes (como refrigeradores).
- No ponga cables de extensión debajo de alfombras o linóleos.
- Los aparatos de calefacción con nafta (kerosene) son peligrosos y están prohibidos.
- No trate de reparar ningún sistema eléctrico.
- No ponga cuchillos dentro del tostador eléctrico.
- No fume en cama.
- No ponga cerraduras externas en las puertas de los dormitorios.
- Planée con anticipación rutas o vías de escape de la casa para casos de incendio y asegúrese de enseñárselas a sus niños.

Si su casa no tiene un extinguidor de fuego o una alarma contra incendio, hable con el propietario. La ley exige a que todo departamento o casa alquilada tenga alarma contra incendio. ¡La prevención salva muchas vidas!

Basura y reciclaje: Las leyes federales, estatales y locales requieren que algunos tipos de basura sean separados especialmente para reciclaje. Los botes de basura plásticos de color amarillo son únicamente para latas, botellas, envases plásticos transparentes y envases plásticos de color para jabón de lavandería. Los botes verdes: Separa y amarre con una cuerda: 1) periódicos, 2) revistas y 3) cartones. Coloque estos objetos en la acera frente a su casa, antes de la media noche de los lunes de cada 15 días (en el Borough) y de los martes de cada 15 días (en el Township).

Toda la otra basura y desperdicios que no son para reciclaje deben ser colocados en bolsas plásticas totalmente cerradas, dentro de botes de basura debidamente cerrados para ser recogidos (los días cambian de acuerdo a la ubicación de su vivienda; pregúntele a sus vecinos). Los botes para la basura se deben retirar de la calle inmediatamente después de ser desocupados.

Estacionamiento de vehículos: El Borough prohibe dejar estacionados carros en la mayoría de las calles por la noche entera. Para averiguar si en su calle se permite dejar estacionados carros por la noche llame al Departamento de Policía al 924-4141. No se permite estacionar carros sobre las aceras o jardines.

Algunas sugerencias para una convivencia armoniosa con los vecinos:

- Por respeto hacia los vecinos, no ponga el volumen alto en sus radios, televisores o estéreos.
- Durante el otoño recoja las hojas secas de los árboles y en el invierno remueva toda la nieve y hielo que se acumulen en las aceras que rodean su vivienda lo antes posible. Estas acciones pueden prevenir accidentes (y demandas en la corte), además de que están ordenadas por la ley (bajo pena de multa).
- No lleve los carritos de los supermercados a su casa; son propiedad particular.
- No haga comentarios (no diga piropos) a las mujeres que caminan por las aceras porque esto no es aceptado culturalmente en esta comunidad.
- No lleve perros o gatos a las zonas de juego para niños en los parques.
- No se permite poner los botes de basura o de reciclaje en las aceras más de 12 horas antes del día de la colección.
- Mantenga muy limpia el área que rodea su vivienda. No permita que se acumule ningún tipo de basura.
- Si a Ud. lo recogen antes de las 8 de la mañana para ir a trabajar, pida a la persona que no toque la bocina del carro, ya que esto puede despertar a los vecinos.

Woodrow Wilson School Lists Upcoming Lectures

The Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University has scheduled several lectures in the coming week that may be of interest to the public.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Tod Peyton

HOUSE HUNTER'S BARGAINS

Houses that are spotlessly clean and tastefully decorated tend to sell quickly, and for top dollar. Many home-buyers will completely dismiss listings that are messy, need paint, or lack the appeal of a well-cared-for home. Some buyers are even scared off by an unkempt yard. If you can overlook surface clutter or other cosmetic failings of a house, the result may be substantial savings.

When you look at a home that needs work, try to imagine it with fresh paint, refinished floors and new carpet. Consider the good things about the house. Would it get more sunlight if the draperies were opened and the windows cleaned? Does the back yard have potential? Try to distinguish between the cosmetic condition and the state of the structure and major systems. While some fixer-uppers need a lot of professional attention from electricians, plumbers and other expensive professionals, others are true bargains that can be transformed with a little elbow grease, a paint brush, and your imagination.

For dependable, individual advice on buying or selling real estate, call Tod Peyton, Realtor or any Peyton Associate at 921-1550. Feel free to stop by my office at 343 Nassau Street in Princeton.

Sushi Bar

When it came time to select a site for the restaurant, Mr. Nam, in his capacity as resident architect, rejected a number of buildings. However, he wasted little time when he found the right one. "When she said Andy's was up for sale, I said 'That's it!' " he remembers.

"I used to come here in 1970 — I knew Andy. I don't think any other location can beat this." Mr. Nam has left a few relics of the Tavern on the walls, like Budweiser and Heineken mirrors, "for old time's sake."

Andy's was a Princeton institution for many years, before falling on hard times in the early 1990's. It enjoyed a brief split-life when the restaurant side was renamed "La Cucina" in 1990. La Cucina went out of business in 1992, and the bar followed shortly after.

THE TIMES THEY ARE A'CHANGING: Once the home of Andy's Tavern, 244 Alexander Street is now Soonja's Cafe, a restaurant featuring Asian food and a sushi bar. Its owners, Soonja and Sin-U Nam, posed in front of their establishment last week.

It was re-opened briefly in 1993, as Andy's Tavern, but did not last very long.

The Nams are currently leasing the property from the owner, Nancy Fasanella, and are in the process of arranging its outright purchase.

It took three months of renovations and a complete overhaul of the kitchen to transform Andy's into Soonja's, but the Nams seem very pleased with the end result.

The restaurant opened very quietly, on March 1. The Nams admit to a bit of nervousness at the start, and were glad to let business trickle in for a few weeks, so that they could make sure that everything ran smoothly.

The early reviews appear to have been good. Mrs. Nam reports that the restaurant has already had a number of return customers.

Not "Typical" Food

Mrs. Nam stresses that the food at Soonja's is different from the fare in "usual Chinese restaurants."

Her dishes, she says, make use of much less oil, and more vegetables, but the difference extends beyond that. The menu at Soonja's does not adhere to a single Asian tradition, but combines dishes from the Nams' native Korea, as well as Japan, China, and Thailand.

Likely to attract the most attention though, is the sushi bar.

Where Andy's patrons used to gulp beer, Seiko "Justin" Yoon, whom the Nam's hired away from the Kang Suh restaurant in New York City, now serves Japanese sushi and sashimi.

An engaging fellow, Mr. Yoon is more than willing to talk to patrons about the business of preparing his specialties. He studied for three years in Nagoya, Japan, before becoming a certified sushi and sashimi chef, and has been working as a chef for nine years, most of that time in New York City.

Sushi is often characterized, unfairly, as "raw fish." While raw fish certainly makes up a large portion of many of the things known as "sushi," the multitude of offerings that fall under that category can also contain rice, vegetables, seaweed, spices, and more.

Presentation is almost as important as content, and many of the different offerings are sculpted into intricate shapes before being served.

The ultra-fresh fish needed for Sushi is not available locally, so Soonja's has it transported directly from New York almost every day of the week.

Mr. Yoon, a native of Korea, sees the restaurant as "a small, attractive place — not really formal. We want to be casual; we want people to feel at home."

During his years in the U.S., says Mr. Yoon, he has come to see the differences between American and Japanese tastes, and has learned to compensate for them. He designed many of the dishes that are now served at Soonja's to cater to more American tastes.

'Screaming Spicy Rolls'

He has also adopted some rather American names for his new dishes, such as Screaming Spicy Rolls I & II, Japanese Dynamite, Rock and Roll, and Princeton Maki. "I can make a lot of interesting things," he says with a grin.

Tradition is not lost, though. If a customer wants something prepared the way it would be in Japan, "Just let me know," he says, "I can make everything."

The menu is not, by any means, limited to sushi. Soonja's offers a variety of appetizers from egg rolls to Korean rice cakes with spicy vegetables. Prices range from $1.50 to $7.95.

Dinner entrees include grilled and steamed specialties such as tofu steak, Soonja's pork cutlet, and tempura. Also available are Pad Thai dishes, U-Dong noodles, numerous Korean specialties, and a "Create-Your-Own" noodle dish. Prices range from $7.95 to $12.95, and include rice where appropriate. Dinner is served daily from 5 to 10:30 p.m.

There is a lunch menu offering a pared-down version of the dinner options, and ranging in price from $6.50 to $9.95. Lunch is served Monday through Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Soonya's does not have a liquor license, but patrons are invited to bring their own bottles. All major credit cards are accepted, and all items can be ordered to go.

Above all, patrons are encouraged to live by the slogan printed on the restaurant's menus: "Dine at Soonja's ... and live happier."

How does your garden grow?
Do you want to get your garden off to a clean start? Begin with Seeds of Change — the finest open-pollinated, certified organic seeds available.
WHY CHOOSE ORGANIC SEEDS?
Large amounts of chemicals are used in the raising of conventional seeds. Before their sale, they are often coated with a fertilizer, pesticide, or fungicide. Raised on certified organic farms, seeds from Seeds of Change are free of added toxins & pesticides. By selecting Seeds of Change, gardeners can support small organic farmers & keep unwanted chemicals out of their garden.
WHY OPEN-POLLINATION?
Commercial hybrids are rapidly replacing traditional "open-pollinated" varieties. This means scientists are now doing what the bees, birds, & wind do best. These hybrids are often developed to emphasize traits — such as longer shelf life — that benefit commercial food production. In the process, nutrition & flavor may be compromised. Seeds of Change chooses plants for their superior flavor, productivity, & nutritional value. They offer many varieties of Heirlooms & Native Traditionals selected over generations by farmers around the world. Choosing Seeds of Change represents a commitment to maintaining diversity in the food chain & variety on the dinner table.

NEW LISTING

Once upon a time, William Thompson, an architect famous for his designs of beautiful Williamsburg style Colonial homes, used his talents to create a home of his own. A later owner renovated and expanded the house adding elegant rooms which resulted in an interesting contrast of architectural styles. The foyer opens to an informal living room with fireplace and glass doors to a long balcony graced by wisteria. A windowed morning room offers a delightful place to have breakfast prepared in the adjoining modern kitchen. The dining room is incredible with a marble floor and fireplace and mirrored cabinets. A bedroom with bath has an outside entrance from a covered porch. A solarium/hall introduces the magnificent step-down living room with handsome fireplace, a lofty tray ceiling and 2 sets of French doors to the outside. A bedroom has a compartmentalized bath. On second floor, a luxurious master suite with fireplace, beamed cathedral ceiling, bath and sitting room/bedroom. On the lower level, a wonderful family room with large brick fireplace, a kitchenette and French doors to a covered brick terrace. Also, a bedroom/study and a full bath. All in a setting of beautiful terraced grounds with specimen trees and picturesque stone walls recently designed and installed by a prominent local landscape architect. $625,000

ORIENTAL RUGS

Kingston, New Jersey

Come see our new shipment of exceptionally fine pile carpets produced by the Ersari/Turkmen and Tibetan Weaving Projects. These projects are supported by Cultural Survival, a human rights organization located in Cambridge, MA. Articles in the Oriental Rug Review have praised their quality and you will be pleasantly surprised at their modest price.

The rugs are handwoven by adult weavers using vegetable dyes and traditional 19th Century designs and colors. Rugs are available in many sizes, including runners.

Proceeds from the sale of these rugs are directed to the educational needs of the children of the Afghan/Turkmen & Tibetan communities that produced them.

For more information and to see these rugs, contact Nick Wright:
